Leslie Hilliker, a young man who is quite well known in this city, was run over by the evening passenger train near the St. Paul depot Friday evening, the result being that he received such injuries that it was necessary to amputate his left arm in the middle of the elbow.

It appears that Hilliker tried to board the train after it had started for the purpose of beating his wife, but that in doing so he lost his foot and fell in such a manner that his arm and hand was caught beneath the wheels, resulting in injuries above stated.

Hilliker played ball with the Ravens Point team last season, and also played with the local team. His friends in this city were sorry to hear of his accident.

SALOONKEEPERS MUST CARE FOR "JAC"

That a saloonkeeper is more bound to care and provide for a man who becomes intoxicated in his saloon until he fails to do so will suit the owner of the place to a T. Henry Green of Green Bay. I winter a man by the name of Beaumla, a farmer, got intoxicated at a Green Bay saloon and on his home froze his feet and hands. They began action for $10,000, making the saloonkeeper responsible for his misfortune.

"THE TRAFFIC."

--Rachael Marshall's new play "The Traffic" which comes to Theatre on Thursday, April 23, created a positive sensation in Chicago where it has been playing nightly to crowded houses; it is said to be the most astonishing dramatic position produced in ten years. A unusual play, a unusual woman, a splendid company of capable actors, a stage of invention which is notable for accuracy and compactness are some of the premises laid for the production.

or of the new piece, is a descendant of Chief Justice Marshall, a collector and follower of Jane Addams of House, a writer of many successful short stories, sketches and essays and a woman of intense sincerity and inexhaustible energy in the cause of her sex.

"The Traffic," deals with so-called white slavery, but approaches the topic from an industrial rather than from strictly ethical standpoint.

The situations and dialogue are said to abound in trenchant and shrewdly practical philosophy.

That it has fulfilled the purpose that it portrays in a stark, but about the common in girls, true to life, has surpassed expectations of superiority of its company of artists and in the perfect stage presentation has been attested.

Death of Ludwlg Olson.

Ludwig Olson died in this of the home of Dr. A. L. Ridgman
Saturday morning after an illne some length, death being accom heart trouble.

Mr. Olson was married to Georgia Ridgman last fall and young couple resided at Owen for several months, when Mr. Olson taken so seriously ill that he was brought to the city and taken of Dr. Ridgman, where he hoped that with proper treatment might be cured of his trouble.
ever, nothing could be done to long his life materially, and he continued to grow worse until he came.

A short service was held here
Saturday and the remains were on the same day to Owen, the of his mother, where they were tended.

The untimely death of this man was certainly a most sad and the widow and other relatives have the sympathy of the commu in their sad affliction.

The Easter Service largely attended at the national church last Sunday, was largely attended, special prayers having been made to have the Lord something out of the ordinary.

A special train from Stevens brought over about a hundred people, some thirty of whom were Templars. The local Knights met them at the depot from where they marched to the city and later aided the services at the church body.

The decoration of the church under the supervision of J. B. and this part of the matter was tended to in a most artistic manner. Ferns, palms, calla and Easter lilies were used in profusion and edifice presented a most happy appearance. The music for the occasion was under the direction of J. H. Wright, and this part service was appreciated by all.

City To Do Sprinkling

At the last meeting of the Council it was decided that it should do the sprinkling in future. With this end in view fathers are negotiating with a debaker people for the purchase of an oil sprinkler, it being the idea to sprinkle some of the street with oil, while on others water is used.

The city is also negotiating for a street sweeper which will be clean up that part of the city the streets have been paved.

Back to Broadway

By George Randolph Chester

(Copyright by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

The mere fact that he was a many times millionaire and owned or controlled enough railroads to string almost twice across the continent did not help the far-famed E. H. Cash one bit in the present juncture. Indeed his illustrious name was much more likely, if he ventured to use it, to get him into trouble than to aid him.

Impossible as it may seem, the illustrious ringmaster of the financial circus was without a cent, in a strange city, a distressingly immense distance from New York, and with absolutely no prospect of getting money unless he should earn it by manual labor, like any other homeless and penniless wanderer. Such an absurd condition was his own fault entirely, and due to two causes, his tremendous business energy and his equally notable personal carelessness.

Mr. Cash was supposed to have started upon a summer cruise in northern waters, and had ostensibly cut the cables from all his business affairs. At Quebec, however, some newspapers had been brought aboard, and in one of them he found an obscure four-line item which made him change his plans in a hurry.

"I am afraid I'll have to apply for a week's shore leave," he explained to his guests, a "stag" crowd. "You fellows don't need any help in entertaining yourselves, for you never get away from the poker table anyhow except to eat and sleep. You own the Petrel till I get back. Just lazy around wherever you like, and pick me up here a week from Monday morning, if you will."

As he hastily threw some necessities into a traveling bag, he noted that he needed a shave, but there was no time for it now. He had almost literally "jumped" into a plain traveling suit, and did not even stop to put on his watch. He found that he had enough cash on hand to pay for his transportation, berth and meals en route, and beyond that he had no worry, for his checkbook and papers were in his traveling bag.

Ashore, he caught his train with but brief minutes to spare, and was so absorbed in the deal he meant to put through that he was a hundred miles on his way before he missed his luggage, finding in place of it only the uncomfortable reflection that through-out his long 30-hour ride he had been deprived of a shave and clean linen.

He was not one given to worry, however, and when he had his final brushing up at his destination he mechanically handed a dollar to the port-only thing that drew him unconsciously into it was the fact that there were benches upon which he might rest without being expected to pay for anything. He was tired and hot, and, appealingly, hungry; moreover, he noted with a certain satisfaction that the velvet-lined benches were the same as those of the hopelessly dejected as himself. He had a bad quarter of an hour, in which a great many of his impressions of the corresponding relations of human beings to each other underwent a radical change. For one thing, he began to estimate his actual value, considered merely as two hands and a brain, if thrown upon the immediate market, for it looked as if the great railroad king would have to hunt a job at unskilled labor.

As he sat dejectedly humped over, his elbows upon his knees and his hands clasped idly together, he noticed that a brown skirt—with a drab belt of braid at the bottom—that twice had slowly passed him, now stopped and glanced up at him. Naturally he glanced up and found a very good-looking girl gazing fixedly down at him. The moment she met his eyes her face lighted with a smile of delight, and she came toward him.

"I just knew it was Mr. Cash," she began vivaciously. "My! this is a long way from Broadway, isn't it?"

No sound had ever rung more agreeably in his ears than his own name pronounced at this moment. For the last couple of hours that magic word had completely lost its power, and he began to realize how few people knew him after all. It was with a sense of positive gratitude that he answered this girl, whom he could not place, but whose face seemed pleasantly familiar.

"Indeed it is," he assented, rising and removing his hat. "I expect I am stupid, but really I cannot seem to place you, Miss—"

"Bessie Williams, but you don't know the name," she returned. "I used to manœuvre you in the Hotel Belvedere, don't you remember? You've had your mustache shaved off, but goodness! I'd know those hands with the mole on both little fingers if I found you down in Alaska stained with walnut juice. I guess you'll think I've got a nerve for wedding in this way, but honest, anybody that was ever nice to me in little old New York looks like a long-lost brother!"

He remembered her perfectly now, and he smiled with amusement as he recalled her vivid personality. She was a girl who had struggled up from the most squalid section of the East side, and was noted on Broadway, not only for her own uncompromising rigidity of conduct, but for the number of other girls she had saved from "making fools of themselves." More especially, however, she was known for the picturesque slang which had clung to her as the only mark of her origin, and for the originality with which she used it. In the present juncture she was surprised to find her suddenly hesitate and show a bit of embarrassment.

"I feel somewhat in the cobb myself," he admitted, to put her at ease. "What brings you out here so far?"

"I'm my own lemon," she replied, recovering her vivacity at once and rattling on with the greatest sangfroid, once she had plunged into the main topic. "Say, Mr. Cash, I'm going to be real open-faced with you about my troubles, because I know you don't make any mistakes in the dark and you don't keep the small change glued down. Every time I ever saw you there was a circle of tips rolling away from you in every direction, and once when a bell-boy got his leg broke I saw you peel off a fifty before anybody could ask if he had a mother. It's this way with me. I'm so stony broke that a ten-cent piece would look the size of the full moon coming up out of the water at Rockaway beach, and if you will just ship me back among the tall buildings I'll manœuvre the whole 'Cash family' for a year!"

"I wish I could," he said sincerely, "but I haven't a penny upon which I can lay my hands. I'm as hard up as any loafer in this port."

"I beg your pardon," said Miss Williams with more dignity than he had expected to find in her. "I am very sorry that I made such a mistake." And she turned to go.

He could see that she was both hurt and mortified; that she had instantly come to the conclusion that he did not care to help her.

"Wait a minute," he called after her, his sympathies wonderfully quickened by his own disagreeable experience. "Come back here and sit down. I was perfectly honest when I said that I am in as much trouble as you are."

She was still incredulous, but he was so earnest in his insistence that she reluctantly came back and allowed him to seat her upon the bench beside him. He explained to her in careful detail precisely what had happened to him, and his unshaven face and soiled clothes were sufficient corroboration. She laughed at his somberness when he had finished.

"Lovely!" she exclaimed with sparkling eyes. "For a minute I was afraid exchange had given me the wrong number, but I couldn't figure out how you'd joined the T. W. family so quick. But now watch the blue trail of our gasoline. Come with your Aunt Bessie!"

She sprang to her feet and he arose uncertainly.

"Where are you stopping?"

"Nowhere as yet," he confessed, angry with himself that he felt a flush rising under the skin of his cheeks.

"We can send you telegrams for you collect without a deposit sufficient to insure payment," she advised him.

"Look at that telegram," he expostulated, "see to whom it is addressed, and by whom it is signed!"

Still without looking at it she shoved the yellow slip toward him.

"It don't make any difference who it is to or who it is from," she insisted. "I've got my orders." And she turned to the next customer.

He glared at her for a moment, but she remained utterly unaware of his existence, and, crumpling the telegram in his hand, he strode out with a set of emotions too varied and too much commingled to classify. An attempt at a nearby bank to draw upon his New York house of exchange came more nearly resulting in his arrest than any of the other experiments, and it was a very much stupefied man who trudged aimlessly up the street, as much a pauper in this city, where he could not think of a soul who knew him, as any tramp with whom he might brush elbows!

He turned into a dreary little park, where a few discouraged-looking trees fought to suck life from the stern gravel in which they were rooted. It was a most unattractive place, and the only seven people in this town with pink nails and there's 42 girls to look after them. If I'd send to mother for a cent she'd have to borrow a Jimmy and a dark lantern to get it. If I'd send to the boss barber at the Belvedere I'd get money so quick the edges would be scorched off when it got here, but I'd have to marry Jimmy when I got back, and while starving would be quicker, it wouldn't be so painful. And that starvation turn's no musical comedy, either. I've got a dinky little two-by-two room paid for until tomorrow night, and then it would have been little me to somebody's kitchen with a half-Nelson on a gas range. And I can't boil eggs."

They had crossed the little park by this time, and had stopped in front of one of those dingy-looking houses that have the perpetual smell of mildew in the front hall. She ushered him into a dim parlor embellished with six pieces of ragged plush furniture and a collection of atrocious wax flowers.

She went right on talking into the transmitter.

on the mantel under a glass globe, and then she tripped upstairs to the third floor. In a moment she hurried back with her suit case and a bowl of water. She threw up a blind and placed the bowl on a little table beside the window.

"First of all, you've got to look the part, so dip in your hand," she directed him as she opened the suitcase and produced her manœuvre set. She was silent only until she sat down. "When I get back to little old Broadway tomorrow night," she rattled on as she deftly and vigorously manœuvred him, "I'll promise never to get farther than four blocks away from the subway again as long as I live. I used to kick because I'd get called up to a room, as sure as death that the job would take an hour and a half, and that there'd be no tip, to manœuvre some wassy woman with her hair on the table and her complexion on the dresser, and her figure hanging up in a closet, and the rest of her beauty scattered on four chairs and the bed, but even that would be job to me now. I've seen all of the county I want, and it's Bessie-sit-by-the-fire for me from this on! I'm willing to live the rest of my life with the 'L' car rattling over my head, and any place in the Great White Way, I'll be happy and still in my grave forever. Now you're done." A sour-visaged old lady had come to the door and glared at them, then walked away. "I don't owe her a cent, and she don't bite," observed the girl; "so just sit here and look sassy till I get back."

She dried her manœuvre set and packed it in its roll of chambray and flannel and fine leather, put on her hat, and left him alone. In ten minutes she had returned, bearing a heavy package and jingling some coins in her hand.

"I got two dollars, one for the tools and one for my good looks," she joyously announced, "which is bright and useful when you remember that the tools only cost me 20 and the handsome face was a present. I gave a polite colored gentleman ten cents for these bricks, right out of his bod, so we've got a dollar-ninety to represent our capital."

"Bricks!" he repeated with a wondering glance at the bundle. "What on earth do you want with those?"

"To put in the suit case, so it won't go straight up when a bell-boy grabs it," she replied. "There's nothing in there now but an old waist that I couldn't get a cent on. Just think I was looking to look like a nice, ready money-going suit case the minute I got back to the room. I hadn't met you! Now, you take this dollar-ninety. Right around the corner there's a ten-cent barber shop, and a gent's furnishing goods store right next door. You buy you one collar for 15 cents, one pair of cuffs for a quarter, one shave for ten cents, one shine for five cents, and a real extravagant-looking 15-cent cigar, but don't light the cigar. Have you got a clean handkerchief?" Fortunately he had. "Give it to me. Now, you bring back the dollar-thirty to spread around in tips; and hurry!"

When he returned, shaved and much refreshed, she had run a white thread figure, and that if it just let the public know about him he'd have Patti forgotten and Melba retired on a pension. So he tried it, and "The Belle of Broadway Company" Number Forty-two quit here. That's all. There's silroln for mine, please, but don't let me think about it or I'll faint."

Fifteen minutes later, his 15-cent cigar in fragrant evidence, he stood at the register of the best hotel in town—not the one to which he had gone before—but he did not sign himself "E. H. Cash." Instead he wrote:

O. H. Jones.

Miss Gertrude Jones.

"The two best suites you have," he ordered.

"Yes, sir, Mr. Jones," said the clerk deferentially, glancing at the respectable, brocade-lined suitcase. "Anything you want sent up?"

"A boy with some telegraph blanks and a waiter."

Presently there came down from him a telegram marked "prepaid," and to be charged upon his bill it was addressed to Henry Cruse of Henry Cruse & Co., bankers, New York, and read like this:

"Here I am, Jiggers, larnped, woolly. Wire $1,000 immediately to me ter, but after he had left the train he found to his dismay that he had only one solitary ten-cent piece in his pocket.

Five cents of that he used in carfare to the office of the man he had so hastily come all this distance to see, and the other five cents he used in riding back downtown. His man had been called from the city that morning, and would not be back for a week or more! Preoccupied with vexation, he walked into the nearest big hotel and scrawled his signature upon the register.

The clerk hesitated a moment, though merely out of habitual courtesy.

"Your luggage not arrived yet, Mr. —er—Cash?" he stammered, puzzling over the register.

Mr. Cash smiled grimly and rubbed his unshaven chin.

"Lost en route," he replied.

"Very unfortunate," commented the clerk with rather a cold expression, his eyes resting casually upon the unshaven face and soiled linen. "The rules of the house, of course, require payment in advance."

The prospective guest frowned a bit haughtily.

"Cash is my name," he observed.

"E. H. Cash of New York," he observed.

"Quite so," agreed the clerk, still more coldly. "Some relation of the famous railroad operator, no doubt."

"Where are you stopping?"

"Nowhere as yet," he confessed, angry with himself that he felt a flush rising under the skin of his cheeks.

"We can send you telegrams for you collect without a deposit sufficient to insure payment," she advised him.

"Look at that telegram," he expostulated, "see to whom it is addressed, and by whom it is signed!"

He turned into a dreary little park, where a few discouraged-looking trees fought to suck life from the stern gravel in which they were rooted. It was a most unattractive place, and the most fantastic outlines. I should imagine, says Hon. Stephen Coleridge in 'Memories,' that all the Beets of the world might anchor there in safety.

In the early seventies a couple of English bluejackets in search of adventure climbed to the top of the mountain, set up a flagstaff and a union jack, get up the pole on the summit and unfurled the flag to the breeze.

The astounded and indignant Brazilians awoke one morning to find an alien building flying over their territory from its most conspicuous eminence. Protesters were lodged with the English minister, who, with the most politeness, apologized for the thoughtless escapade of some entirely unknown persons and gravely told the Brazilian government that of course he would have no possible objection to the prompt removal of the flag and pole. The emperor, however, could find no subject in all his wide empire who would volunteer to make the ascent to the summit of the mountain, which the people of Rio de Janeiro considered unbecomingly the Brazilian government determined to knock over the staff by shooting at it. The Brazilian fleet was ordered to shoot the offending pole off the top of the mountain. Either they could not train their guns to the required angle of elevation or the target was too narrow for a successful shot. At any rate, the English flag flying over the proud Brazilian city remained, braving the battle and the breeze, till it rotted away.

Some Hitch In Prospects.

"Now that you have agreed to marry me, dearest, I presume I had better ask your father's consent."

"You may, if you like, but it isn't at all necessary. I am in the habit of doing exactly as I please." "Oh, in that case, perhaps I'd better consult your father about the advisability of not marrying you, then."—Detroit Free Press.

MILWAUKEE GOES NON-PARTISAN

Mayor Bading Re-Elected and Carries Entire Ticket to Victory.

BAD DEFEAT FOR SOCIALISTS

Anti-Saloon Forces Are Winners in Many of the Smaller Wisconsin Towns But Large Cities Generally Go "Wet."

Milwaukee, April 8.—Milwaukee again turned thumbs down on Socialism yesterday with a majority of 6,000 against the Socialist ex-mayor, Emil Seidel, and the re-election of Dr. G. A. Bading, who two years ago was elected when the old parties merged and dropped national party affiliations in a common war against the Social Democrats.

The election of Mayor Bading by this majority, in the face of a desperate effort by the Socialists to regain control of the city, carries with it the election of the entire Non-Partisan slate. The Non-Partisan victory also includes the six aldermen-at-large, who take the places of six Socialists, elected four years ago.

In some of the strong Socialist wards aldermen were chosen by the Socialists, but in six of the twenty-three Socialists, candidates were eliminated at the primary. The new council will be composed of 31 Non-Partisans and six Socialists.

Non-Partisan Judge Chosen.

One of the most dubious problems of the Non-Partisans was the election of a circuit judge, W. J. Turner, the sitting circuit judge, being a candidate against a Socialist. The returns show that Turner was elected, the heavy Non-Partisan vote in the county outside Milwaukee making up for a slight falling off in the city vote as compared with the vote for mayor.

The Non-Partisans elected with Mayor Bading were City controller, Louis P. Kautsky, treasurer, Joseph P. Carney, attorney, W. H. Trimlin, Jr., Elections in State.

The elections in the state were chiefly marked by fights on the license question, as the new Non-Partisan law prevents the appearance of party candidates on municipal tickets. The "drys" gained considerable ground, but most of the gains were in country precincts, and the larger cities showed no change in policy.

Among the cities voting, reports show the following to have voted in favor of license:

Madison, Janesville, Beloit, Palmyra, Mauston, Darlington, Boyceville, Downing, Wheeler, Manawa, Shawano, Westcott, Dodgeville, Ridgeway, Cobb, Linden, Hollandale and Fort Atkinson.

Victories for the "dry" element were recorded in:

Lodi, Marquette, Barneveldt, Lancaster, Montfort, Milton, Rewey, Black Earth, Blanchardville, Argyle, Stoughton, Cumberland, Washburn, Norway, Potosi, Lake, Turtle Lake, Rice Lake, Amery, Cumberland, Chetek, Cameron, New Auburn, Ridgeland, Plymouth, Milton Junction, Dallas, Barron and Union Grove.

Among the mayors elected were:

De Pere—John Steckert, Jr., Non-Partisan.

Black River Falls—J. J. McGilivray, Republican.

Mauston—George Harland, Republican.

Darlington—Dr. W. W. Peck, Non-Partisan.

Shell Lake—Andrew Ryan, Republican.

Lodi—Robert Caldwell, Non-Partisan.

Ripon—A. J. Maudlin, Non-Partisan.

Superior Mayor Re-Elected.

Superior, April 8.—Joseph S. Konkel, mayor of this city, was the victor yesterday in a recall election, by a scant 33, out of a total of more than fifty thousand votes. The supporters of his opponent, J. R. Hille, threaten a contest, charging irregularities.

Kenosha Re-Elects Mayor.

Kenosha, April 8.—M. J. Scholey, the most unique figure in Wisconsin politics, who rose from bartender to mayor of Kenosha, scored another big personal victory yesterday when he defeated William M. Farr by a majority of 492 votes.

No Board Rule for Kansas City.

Kansas City, Mo., April 8.—Compulsory form of government under the standard of W. R. Nelson, owner of the Kansas City Star, and C. A. Burton, independent candidate for mayor, was beaten by 10,000 majority by the Democrats Henry L. Jost, Democrat, is re-elected mayor. The Republicans ran third and Progressive last.

LOADING LOGS ON STEAMER

Tourists Find Method of Putting Mahogany on Board Vessels Very Interesting.

New York.—The interior of Nicaragua contains forests of mahogany, some of the finest grades of that splendid wood being shipped from that country, says Popular Mechanics. Felled in the dense tropical forests, roughly hewn and hauled to the seaboard, these huge logs are thrown in the water and chained in large booms to await the passage of an up-bound steamer. To see them hauled up, glistening in the sunlight, their grain showing up in a brilliant red, is one of the interesting sights of the tourist. Some of the logs weigh as much as two tons, and are valued at a hundred dollars each. White mahogany is also shipped from Nicaragua, and is increasing in popular favor.

COSTLY FREIGHT IN ALASKA

Cheapest Service to Northern Country Involves Trip Around the Aleutian Islands.

New York.—If a miner at Fairbanks orders a boiler shipped to him by the southeastern route, it comes by steamer 1,000 miles from Puget sound up the inland passage to Skagway. There it is transhipped to the narrow gauge White Pass & Yukon railroad, which climbs nearly three thousand feet up White Pass, crosses the divide and winds down on the other side 110 miles to White Horse on the upper Yukon. There the boiler is handled again, this time being loaded on a little Canadian river steamer which carries it 460 miles to Dawson. Once more there is unloading and loading; and the boiler is stored away on an American river steamer that makes the last 1,000 miles of the trip to Fairbanks.

But this route is so very expensive that most of the freight goes by the Northwestern route—2,700 miles by steamer around the Aleutian islands to St. Michael, the World's Work states.

Such is the cheapest freight service to the metropolis of central Alaska, and the merchant who uses this service has to pay a year's supply at a time and pay interest on the storage on it. The freight rate on the necessities of life, which amounts to about one hundred and thirty-five dollars a year for every man, woman and child in the interior, is what keeps down the population.

Two Americans Cast Ashore on Island Live Seventeen Days on Oysters and Clams.

Calcutta.—Two Americans, J. P. Collins and A. J. Dann, sole survivors of the Glasgow schooner Marie Ellen, tell a thrilling story of their adventures when the ill-fated vessel was wrecked a year ago on Dutch Borneo. They only recently reached Rangoon from Singapore.

When in the neighborhood of La Hia Datu, British Borneo, the cry of "breakers ahead" brought all hands on deck. In the afternoon the vessel struck the reef with such force she carried away her masts.

"It soon became a case of every man for himself, and we watched our opportunity to drop over the side and swim for a small island as could see in the distance on the port quarter," said Collins. "The land we gained we learned afterwards was Paul Bonin island."

"For 17 days we lived on raw oysters and clams and then it was discovered Malay woodcutters cooking a meal. Their chief, Haj Ali, treated us well and two days later we were taken to Tarakan."

35 BUSHELS PER ACRE

was the yield of WHEAT on many farms in Western Canada in 1913, some yields being reported as high as 50 bushels per acre. As high as 100 bushels were recorded in some districts for each acre.

50 bushels for each acre from 10 to 20 bushels for each acre.

J. Keys arrived in Western Canada in 1913, with very little money, but with a lot of hard work, is now the owner of 32 acres of land. In 1912 he had a crop of 300 acres, which will realize him about $4,000. His wheat weighed 65 lbs. to the bushel and averaged over 35 bushels to the acre.

Thousands of similar instances might be related of the home-owners in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The crop of 1913 was an abundant one everywhere in Western Canada.

Symptom of the Dawn.

Dr. Stanton Coll, who lectured in Boston not long ago on Bernard Shaw, made a comment that is recalled by the production here of one of Shaw's plays.

"Shaw is a sign of the times," said Dr. Coll. Then, referring to the plot of Rosenda's "Chantecler," in which the cock thinks that the sun rises because he crows, the speaker added:

"More people get up in the morning because the cock crows than because the sun rises. And yet the cock crow is only a symptom of the dawn."

"Which proves that the Koreans are about the wisest nation on earth," suggested her husband.

"Well," said Mr. Chatterley, with distinct emphasis, "simply because they make a deity of a woman who has sense enough to give her chin a rest."

HAD TO ENDURE THE FLAG

Prank of British Seamen That Naturally Caused Much Indignation in Brazil.

The harbor of Rio de Janeiro is one of the wonders of the world. You enter a narrow strait guarded by a towering coral mountain and discover a glorious inland sea surrounded on every side by abrupt and precipitous mountains, many of them with the most fantastic outlines. I should imagine, says Hon. Stephen Coleridge in 'Memories,' that all the Beets of the world might anchor there in safety.

In the early seventies a couple of English bluejackets in search of adventure climbed to the top of the mountain, set up a flagstaff and a union jack, get up the pole on the summit and unfurled the flag to the breeze.

The astounded and indignant Brazilians awoke one morning to find an alien building flying over their territory from its most conspicuous eminence. Protesters were lodged with the English minister, who, with the most politeness, apologized for the thoughtless escapade of some entirely unknown persons and gravely told the Brazilian government that of course he would have no possible objection to the prompt removal of the flag and pole. The emperor, however, could find no subject in all his wide empire who would volunteer to make the ascent to the summit of the mountain, which the people of Rio de Janeiro considered unbecomingly the Brazilian government determined to knock over the staff by shooting at it. The Brazilian fleet was ordered to shoot the offending pole off the top of the mountain. Either they could not train their guns to the required angle of elevation or the target was too narrow for a successful shot. At any rate, the English flag flying over the proud Brazilian city remained, braving the battle and the breeze, till it rotted away.

Some Hitch In Prospects.

"Now that you have agreed to marry me, dearest, I presume I had better ask your father's consent."

"You may, if you like, but it isn't at all necessary. I am in the habit of doing exactly as I please." "Oh, in that case, perhaps I'd better consult your father about the advisability of not marrying you, then."—Detroit Free Press.

RAPID LIFE IN WINDY CITY

According to New York Woman's Story Its Reputation Has Basis Other Than Humorous.

There is a New York woman who goes twice a year to Chicago with her husband, when the latter makes periodical business trips. They always stay at the same hotel—a large, though quiet house, which gets a good deal of Chicago and Illinois trade. The New Yorkers have come to be known to the woman housekeeper of the hotel. They have just returned from their latest journey to the city by Lake Michigan, and this is what Mrs. New Yorker says.

"I always used to think that the humorous paragraphs in the papers dealing with the frequency of Chicago divorces were jokes, but I know now they have a solid basis of fact. The reason? Because when we were in Chicago this time the housekeeper of the hotel said to me: 'I'm so glad to see you back again, ma'am. And you know—if you'll excuse me saying it—your the only lady that comes back here year after year with the same husband.'—New York Times

Backache Warns You

Backache is one of Nature's warnings of kidney weakness. Kidney disease kills thousands every year.
Don't neglect a bad back. If your back is lame, it is a sign to stop or lift—if there is irregularity of the secretions, suspect your kidneys. If you suffer headaches, dizziness and are tired, nervous and worn-out, you have further proof. Use Doan's Kidney Pills, a fine remedy for bad backache and weak kidneys.

AN OHIO CASE

Francis M. Hurst, 56 E. 14th St., Cincinnati, Ohio, writes: "My back has given out completely and I had to use two crutches to get around. I dropped out of school. I stopped to pick it up. My back was terribly lame and painful and by April 1st I was laid up in bed. I lost hope. It seemed that nothing could be done for me. I for a long time had heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and before long they came to me. I took them and in a few days I was on my feet. I am now a healthy man. I am a great admirer of Doan's Kidney Pills."

406 South Hermitage Ave., Chicago, Ill.—"I was attacked with a breaking out on the inside of my arms. It was a small rash or pimples and it itched and burned, especially at night, so that before I knew it I had made myself sore. I had this trouble and took treatments for about one year, but they only gave me relief while taking them. Then I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I got relief right away. In three months I was a well man again." (Signed) H. W. Foley, Nov. 5, 1912.

Mustard an Ancient Remedy.
Mustard is one of the most ancient of medicines. Pythagoras, who flourished between 540 and 490 years before Christ, mentions it. Hippocrates, who was born in 460 B. C., employed it. Pliny the Elder, writing in A. D., describes three different kinds of mustard, and says the seeds were imported to Italy from Egypt originally.

The Romans used it as a stimulant after a cold bath. They mixed mustard and olive oil in equal parts and used this as a liniment for stiffness of the muscles. They knew the virtues of mustard poultices and of mustard as an emetic. As a remedy for the stings of scorpions and serpents, they pounded it, mixed it with vinegar and applied it to the wound.
They also made a drink out of it, fermented with the seed in a luscious liquor. The liquor thus produced they called mustard ardens, which means burning wine. The word mustard is probably derived from this.

With a merry twinkle in his half-closed eyes Parson Heavegrace replied:

"What is the meaning of these markings?" I asked. "The barrels seem to contain the same kind of apples."
"They are the same kind, son," the old gentleman replied, but some customers want a barrel opened at the top and some at the bottom."

To Him, for instance, Betty—'N't shall I take 'em for an answer 'N't 'n't I take 'em?"

TEA GOWN SURVIVES

TOO CHARMING A GARMENT TO BE DISCARDED.

Modern Style Effects Are Being Introduced Into the Robe d'interieur, Which Need Not Follow Any Special Mode.

Not so very long ago a disquieting rumor went round to the effect that the days of the tea gown were numbered. It was stated in so many words that the craze for motorizing had practically killed the graceful and charming robe d'interieur and that while women were so busy rushing from one end of the country to another, wrapped to the eyes in hideous garments, they left themselves no time for choosing or wearing any kind of gown which could only make a rare and brief appearance by their own fireside.

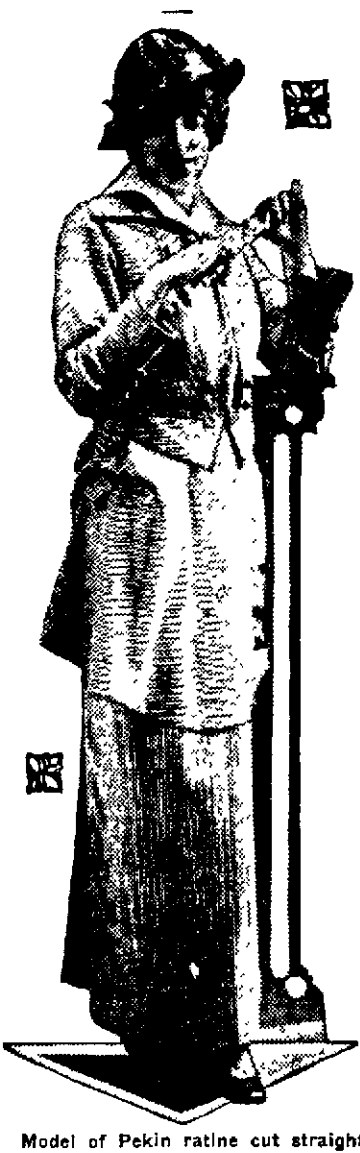

Fortunately, however, for those who like to think that there must be some women left who can appreciate the charm of quiet restfulness, and who like to dress themselves suitably when they have an opportunity of enjoying even a brief lull in the round of pleasure and excitement, the tea gown seems to have survived these and other vicissitudes.

At the present moment it may certainly be found in numberless attractive guises, and arranged in so many different ways that only the woman who is entirely devoid of the dress instinct should have any difficulty in discovering some style which will bring out all her good points and entirely conceal her deficiencies, always supposing that she should possess any.

There is another pleasant point to be considered when the tea gown of today is under discussion, and that is the undoubted fact that in the case of garments of this description a great deal is left to individual taste, and no hard and fast rules are laid down by Dame Fashion. There is no special mode which must be followed, regardless altogether of the natural line of the figure. If your robe d'interieur is charming in itself, as regards color and fabric, and, more important still, if it should prove unquestionably becoming, no other consideration need have the slightest weight.

Transparent coat effects are seen on many of the new tea gowns. A very effective garment of this kind is arranged with a draped overcoat of sheer spotted net, made in kimono style, but complete in itself, so that it may be worn at will with gowns in widely different colors and materials. In the case of the tea gown under consideration with this spotted net coat the under-robe is of orange chamois, gathered closely with a frilled heading, drawn in on elastic at the waist, and made with a very long train.

NEW TAILORED COSTUME

Model of Pekin ratine cut straight in front and draped in back.

STYLES FOR LITTLE FOLKS

Spring Garments Are to Be Trimmed With Lace in an Elaborate Fashion.

What mother is there who does not at times search high and low in the shops for "something new" in the line of children's wear? For amid the bewildering array of American and imported models there always seem to be but one or two styles for little folk.

A careful survey of the new spring styles for children, which have not yet been shown to the general public, indicates that batiste, point d'esprit, pique and embroidered voile will be the favored materials in the fashioning of their clothes.

For children who range in age from two to five years there seems to be a much better choice of models and trappings and style lines are as widely diversified. The waist, which is most frequently marked by a rash of some kind, may be either low or high, after the Greenaway fashions, which may bring into popularity the rather long skirt of that period. The new spring garments for children seem to be trimmed large with lace—hand-crocheted Irish and Valenciennes predominating. Tiny buttons, covered with silk or satin to match the encircling sash, are also very frequently seen.

Removable Muff Lining.

If a muff has been carried for some time it is very likely to soil light gloves when they come in contact with the lining. To overcome this a removable lining is effective. A white lining of silk or satin, made the correct size, and with a lace trimmed frill at either end can be slipped in when white or light gloves are to be worn, and safely planned in position. When dark gloves are to be worn again the special lining is removed, to keep it fresh.

Roll Over Collars.

Roll over collars of lawn, cambric or pique, or of the thick white and cream silk such as is used for men's mufflers are very fashionable, attached to the blouse or waistcoat and adjusted to lie over the coat collar. They are quite plain, finished merely with a stitched edge. In contrast with these loose affairs are the little upstanding and wired Medici collars of lace or embroidered lawn. A band of velvet with jeweled slide is often worn round the throat, as are pretty little scarfs of tulle or nylon edged narrowly with ostrich, marabout or swansdown. Fichus of net, tulle, lace or nylon are still in favor.

Bows Freshened.

If the bows of hat or gown have become wrinkled and crushed they can be freshened up without removing. Take a tablespoon or a large metal mixing spoon and heat it with the concave side toward the heat. When the spoon is sufficiently hot put it in the bows and pass the parts over the arched side of the spoon. Dampen the bows before ironing.

Background for Gems.

A tulle green makes the best background for diamonds, excepting perhaps black, and brocade—dark—also.

DICTATES L. FASHION

Checks and plaid ratines are in demand.
Black and white china frocks are seen in the shops.
Both high and low collures are in fashion at present.
There is a revival of cross-stitch in artistic needlework.
Beads in flaming yellow pink color are called tango beads.
Rice cloth is a sheer cotton, with a twoven knotted yarn.
Multi-colored stripes are seen even in wash silks and crepes.
The woman who is well dressed wears the jersey silk or jersey woolen top petticoat. They take up small space and do not wrinkle.
Some of the new bolero coats of the street costumes just reach the waist line at the back. Broad belts of taffeta or moire in various colors extend to meet the jackets.

Shoes for the Spring Wardrobe.

A dozen pairs of boots, pumps and slippers will be a really modest allowance for the spring wardrobe.

COUNTRY OF PEACE

Principle of Personal Freedom Also Dominant in Holland.

Liberty Has Always Been the Prevailing Passion of the Dutch and Arts and Sciences of the Race Have Grown in This Atmosphere.

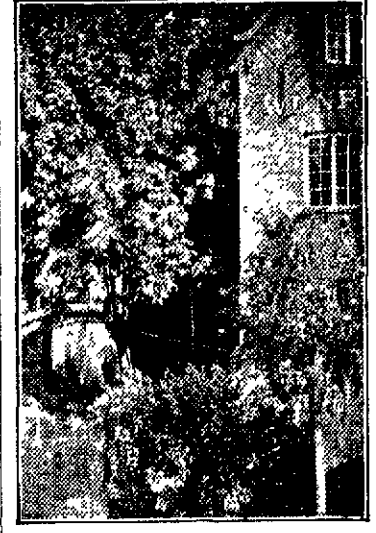

New York—There is hardly a country in the world where the principle of personal freedom is so deeply rooted in the hearts of the people as it is in the Dutch. Holland was the first country to recognize and establish the right of individual liberty—the right to think and the right to speak. Holland has always extended a hearty welcome to all those who were oppressed and persecuted in other lands; Huguenots from France, Puritans from England, Jews from Spain and Germany, they all fled to Holland and made the country prosperous.

This is what appeals to Americans. What Holland has been in the past, America is today. Holland was the land of religious liberty in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. America is the land of intellectual and economic freedom of the present age.

Freedom has been the dominant note during the entire history of the Dutch, and art and science have grown in the atmosphere of liberty, and reached the highest level. Go and admire the masterpieces of Rembrandt, Hals, Potter and Dou, and you will realize that their works were born in the land of the free.

In the field of science, Holland has accomplished more than any other country of its size. Coeter, Spinoza, de Vries, Van't Hoff are known all the world over, and of late years five or more Hollanders have obtained the Nobel prize for science, for chemistry and for peace!

bined, and it came out victorious. It has also struggled (is struggling still) with the internal foe, the water, and every inch of land has been conquered from the sea.

Today in Holland there is harmony in the land and peace with the world outside. Holland has been chosen by the rest of the world as the great center, from which the idea of peace and peaceful arbitration may spread, slowly, but surely, over all the nations of the earth.

My wife felt weak and was really tired and was also troubled with various pains, but since she took Peru-na she is well and strong."

RAPID LIFE IN WINDY CITY
According to New York Woman's Story its Reputation is as Basis Other Than Humorous.

There is a New York woman who goes twice a year to Chicago with her husband, when the latter makes periodic business trips. They always stay at the same hotel—a large, quiet house, which gets a good deal of Chicago and Illinois trade. The New Yorker has come to be known to the woman housekeeper of the hotel. They have just returned from their latest journey to the city by Lake Michigan, and this is what Mrs. New Yorker says:

"I always used to think that the humorous paragraphs in the papers dealing with the frequency of Chicago divorces were jokes, but I know now they have a solid basis of fact. The reason? Because when we were in Chicago this time the housekeeper of the hotel said to me: 'I'm so glad to see you back again, ma'am. You know—if you'll excuse me saying it—you're the only lady that comes back here every year with the same husband.'—New York Times.

Just Reversed.
"Went to a freak dinner last night, an upside down dinner."
"I've heard of flying upside down. Are people foolish enough to eat that way?"
"We weren't upside down. The dinner was. We started with nuts and finished with soup."

This would be a much more pleasant world if there weren't so many ways of making people unhappy.

A child six to nine years requires one-half the food of a man.

Backache Warns You

Kidney is one of Nature's warnings of kidney weakness. Kidney disease kills thousands every year.

Don't neglect a backache. If your back is lame—if it hurts to stoop or lift—if there is irregularity of the secretions—suspect your kidneys. If you suffer headache, dizziness and a tired, nervous all-around you have further proof.

Use Doan's Kidney Pills, a fine, new remedy for back aches and weak kidneys.

AN OHIO CASE

Francis M. Hill, 214 E. 1st St., Portsmouth, Ohio, writes: "I have been afflicted with backache and kidney trouble for several years. I tried many remedies but nothing did me any good. I was told to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I took them and in a few days I felt better. I continued to take them and in a few more days I was completely cured. I have not had a backache since."

TEA GOWN SURVIVES
TOO CHARMING A GARMENT TO BE DISCARDED.

Modern Style Effects Are Being Introduced into the Robe d'Interieur, Which Need Not Follow Any Special Mode.

Not so very long ago a disquieting rumor went the round to the effect that the days of the tea gown were numbered. It was stated in so many words that the "robe" for morning had practically killed the gown, and that the charming robe d'interieur, and that while women were so busy rushing from one end of the country to another, wrapped in the eyes in hideous garments, they left themselves no time for choosing or wearing any kind of gown which could only make a rare and brief appearance by their own fireside.

Fortunately, however, for those who like to think that there must be some women left who can appreciate the charm of quiet restfulness, and who like to dress themselves suitably when they have an opportunity of enjoying even a brief lull in the round of pleasure and excitement, the tea gown seems to have survived these and other vicissitudes.

At the present moment it may certainly be found in numberless attractive guises, and arranged in so many different ways that only the woman who is entirely devoid of the dress instinct should have any difficulty in finding covering some style which will bring out all her good points and entirely conceal her deficiencies, always supposing that she should possess any.

There is another pleasant point to be considered when the tea gown of today is under discussion, and that is the undoubted fact that in the case of garments of this description a great deal is left to individual taste, and in the hands of the artist, there is no special mode which must be followed, regardless altogether of the natural line of the figure. If your robe d'interieur is charming in itself, as regards color and fabric, and, more importantly still, if it should prove unquestionably becoming, no other consideration need have the slightest weight. In the transparent coat effects are seen on many of the new tea gowns. A very effective garment of this kind is arranged with a draped overcoat of acru spotted net, made in kimono style, but complete in itself, so that it may be worn at will with gowns in widely different colors and materials. In the case of the tea gown under consideration with the spotted net coat the underrobe is of orange chamois, gathered closely with a frilled heading, drawn in on elastic at the waist, and made with a very long train.

Model of Pekin raitine out straight in front and draped in back.

STYLES FOR LITTLE FOLKS
Spring Garments Are to Be Trimmed With Lace in an Elaborate Fashion.

What mother is there who does not at times search high and low in the shops for "something new" in the line of children's wear? For amid the bewildering array of American and imported models there always seem to be but one or two styles for little folk.

A careful survey of the new spring styles for children, which have not yet been shown to the general public, indicates that haute couture, esprit, pique and embroidered voile will be the favored materials in the fashioning of their clothes.

For children who range in age from two to five years there seems to be a much better choice of models and trimmings and style lines are as widely diversified. The waist, which is most frequently marked by a rash of some kind, may be either low or high, after the Greenaway fashions, which long skirt into popularity the rather long spring garments for children seem to be trimmed large with lace—hand-crocheted Irish and Valenciennes predominating. Tiny buttons, covered with silk or satin to match the enclosing sash, are also very frequently seen.

Removable Muff Lining.
If a muff has been carried for some time it is very likely to soil light gloves when they come in contact with the lining. To overcome this a removable lining, of a material of the correct size, and with a lace trimmed, trill at either end can be slipped in when white or light gloves are to be worn, and safely-planned into position. When dark gloves are to be worn again the lining is removed, to keep it fresh.

Crushed Morocco.
Crushed morocco leads the fashion in the hairless pelts used for making desk sets, guestroom information cards, hall mail boxes, toilet articles, bags of all sizes, and for binding dinner records, theater notes, travel impressions and all other special books that are included among the intimate belongings of the truly smart woman. The crushed morocco is so utterly unlike the uncrushed sort that it is not readily recognized. It has a beautifully smooth and glossy surface that is fascinating to the eye, and it comes in the loveliest shades of rose, blue, mauve and blue. Some of the pieces are lettered in glossy black and others in gold or white, but silver on its soft shading is prettiest of all. Compared with the crushed morocco, the rough-surfaced kind looks crude, harsh and cheap.

To Clean Black Jet.
First brush the jet free from dust, then apply a little olive oil with a brush and polish with chamois.

SET OFF SPRING COAT SUIT
Dainty Accessories That Must Be Worn if a Woman Would Look Her Best.

Dainty neckwear, blouses and vests are absolutely essential to complete the modish spring coat suit, as most of these suits are designed with the display of these accessories. The little sleeveless necklaces shown on the left have foundation of cream net and were trimmed with surplice bands of Venice lace edged with narrow plaiting of net and having a de Medicis collar of the lace. Old blue broadcloth and cream lace were converted into the dainty collar on the right. The collar consisted of alternately placed points of the silk and lace. The narrow revers were of broadcloth covered with net.

Background for Gems.
A tulle gown makes the best background for diamonds, excepting perhaps black and broadcloth.

DICTIONARIES U. FASHION
Checks and plaid raitines are in demand. Black and white china frocks are seen in the shops.

Both high and low collures are in fashion at present. There is a revival of cross-stitch and in artistic needlework.

Beads in flaming yellow pink color are called tango beads. Rice cloth is a sheer cotton, with an woven knobby stripes are seen even in wash silks and crepes.

The woman who is well dressed wears the jersey silk or jersey woolen top petticoat. They take up small space and do not wrinkle.

Some of the new bolero coats of the street costumes just reach to the waist line at the back. Broad belts of taffeta or moire in various colors extend to meet the jackets.

Shoes for the Spring Wardrobe.
A dozen pairs of boots, pumps and slippers will be a really modern allowance for the spring.

Removable Muff Lining.
If a muff has been carried for some time it is very likely to soil light gloves when they come in contact with the lining. To overcome this a removable lining, of a material of the correct size, and with a lace trimmed, trill at either end can be slipped in when white or light gloves are to be worn, and safely-planned into position. When dark gloves are to be worn again the lining is removed, to keep it fresh.

Roll Over Collars.
Roll over collars of lawn, cambric or pique, or of the thick white and crease silk such as is used for men's cuffs are very fashionable, attached to the blouse or waistcoat and adjusted to lie over the coat collar. They are quite plain, finished merely with a stitched edge. In contrast with these loose affairs are the little upstanding and wired Medici collars of lace or embroidered lawn. A band of velvet with jeweled slides is often worn round the neck, and are pretty little scarfs of tulle or nylon edged narrowly with ostrich, marabout or swansdown. Stitches of net, tulle, lace or nylon are still in favor.

Bows Freshened.
If the bows of hat or gown have become wrinkled and crushed they can be freshened up without removing. Take a tablespoon or a large metal mixing spoon and heat it with the concave side toward the bow. When the spoon is sufficiently hot put it in the bows and pass the parts over the arched side of the spoon. Dampen the bows before ironing.

COUNTRY OF PEACE
Principle of Personal Freedom Also Dominant in Holland.

Liberty Has Always Been the Prevailing Passion of the Dutch and Artists and Scientists of the Race Have Grown in This Atmosphere.

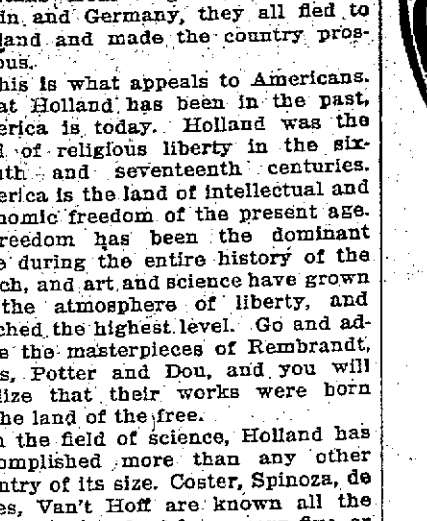

New York.—There is hardly a country in the world where the principle of personal freedom is so deeply rooted in the hearts of the people as it is in the Dutch. Holland was the first country to recognize and establish the right of individual liberty—the right to think and the right to speak. Holland has always extended a hearty welcome to all those who were oppressed and persecuted in other lands; Huguenots from France, Puritans from England, Jews from Spain and Germany, they all fled to Holland and made the country prosperous.

This is what appeals to Americans. What Holland has been in the past, America is today. Holland was the land of religious liberty in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. America is the land of intellectual and economic freedom of the present age.

Freedom has been the dominant note during the entire history of the Dutch, and art and science have grown in the atmosphere of liberty, and reached the highest level. Go and admire the masterpieces of Rembrandt, Hals, Potter and Dou, and you will realize that their works were born in the land of the free.

In the field of science, Holland has accomplished more than any other country of its size. Kepler, Spinoza, de Vries, Van Leeuwenhoek and the world over, and of late years five or more Hollanders have obtained the Nobel prize for science, for chemistry and for peace!

lined, and it came out victorious. It has also struggled (is struggling still) with the internal foe, the water, and every inch of land has been conquered from the sea!

Today in Holland there is harmony in the land and peace with the world outside. Holland has been chosen by the rest of the world as the great center, from which the idea of peace and peaceful arbitration may spread, slowly, but surely, over all the nations of the earth.

The first book on international peace the world has ever seen was written by a Hollander, Hugo de Groot, as early as 1625. The world now seems ready to apply the idea of peace, and a large number of disputes between nations have already been settled in the Peace palace at The Hague.

As far as size is concerned, Holland is a small country, but it may well be proud of its past and its present, and it still has a mission to fulfill in the future civilization of man.

The Roman coins were discovered in the ruins of Pompeii in 1891 by a joint expedition of the French government and the University of California.

Too Many Tomorrows

Civilization would advance a hundred years in as many hours if humanity would cease to put things off indefinitely by leaving them until a tomorrow, and decide to do them TODAY.

It is the tomorrows of life that turn many a near success into an utter failure. It is the custom we have of putting off the aches and pains that eventually bring us to a stage of chronic sickness where relief is almost impossible, and life a burden instead of a joy.

Why not determine to attend to your trouble TODAY? No matter what may be your ailment, its relief will be augmented by prompt attention, and your inconvenience of shorter duration.

They say that down at Nekosha things were pretty warm just before election, the lower end of the village being pitted against the upper end. All kinds of talk was abolished for the time being and the only thing that received any notice were the political issues of the day. A man was accidentally killed in the mill yard the day before election, but the fact did not cause much of a stir because of the attention that was being paid to the coming election. They say that a man who was coming up from the mill yard, stopped a friend and told him that a man had just been killed down there. "That so?" said the friend; "which end of town was he from?"

It looks very much as if some of the paving that was done last summer on the west side was going to prove a decided failure, as there are many places where the work has given way under the traffic and is now more or less loose on the surface. It is not possible to tell just how far these bad spots will extend when the wear of summer traffic is put onto them, but it is to be hoped that it will not be very extensive. These macadamized roads cost enough so that the taxpayers are not anxious to see them go to pieces the first year they are put in use, and it is to be hoped that some method of repairing the bad spots will be discovered, altho this is said to be a difficult matter.

TO FORFEIT SALOON BONDS

When the bond of a saloonkeeper is violated it shall be the duty of the district attorney to bring an action in the name of the state to recover the $500 due the state as forfeiture, says Attorney General Owen to District Attorney David Rogue, Columbia county. Saloonkeepers, who sell liquor to habitual drunkards, posted persons, or minors, are guilty of a breach of the bond under this opinion and it is made the duty of the district attorney to prosecute. Although Wisconsin saloonkeepers have always been required to give $500 bonds, investigation by the attorney general's department does not disclose that there has ever been an action to collect as the result of a violation.

"The correct practice in such cases, it seems to me," writes the attorney general, "is for the party in possession of the evidence to lay it before the district attorney and the district attorney should then make and sign the complaint and bring the action in the name of the state. It is the duty of the district attorney to prosecute such an action as soon as he has sufficient evidence in his possession showing that the bond has been breached."

"I do not believe that a private citizen can bring this action."

For a Spring Cleaning. Spring is at hand. Flowers will soon begin to bud and blossom, the trees to taken on their summer verdure. Another year—let us begin with the same purty officials—will be upon us in the city hall, and municipal housecleaning will immediately be undertaken.

Now is the time when more people are on the streets than ever. They must remember not to litter them with paper and other refuse. They must remember, also, that the alleys should be kept clean, for now is the fly breeding time, and dirt and filth help to propagate these pests. The mosquito thrives on the uncleanness of the people in regard to such matters as the disposal of garbage and other litter.

It is well to remember these things. Horses, wagons, and automobiles passing from a dirty alley into a clean street make the street dirty, and a dirty street is a disease breeder. No one knows the source of all sicknesses, but if they could be traced, it might astonish people to learn what proportion come from mere lack of cleanliness.

By not keeping your yard clean, you are apt to make yourself or your children ill; you are really also risking the health of your neighbor. So, clean it up. If it isn't already in that condition, and keep it so. Clean your basement, also. Here is one place that needs strict attention. Don't let foul odors fill your home.

With your neighbor, if necessary, clean up the vacant lot near your home. Weeds, and rubbish thrown on these vacant places, do much harm. Pile rubbish where the city wagons can get it and haul it away. Now is the time to think of these things.

A clean administration means a clean city, but only insofar as the people themselves help. The city will do its share in faithful sprinkling and removal of dirt from the streets, but the citizens must co-operate, and let none of them forget to do so—in every particular.—Milwaukee News.

Will Charge Flat Rate. In conformity with a plan to raise rates all over the country, the railroad of Wisconsin have filed notice with the railroad rate commission that after May 1, they will raise the passenger rates in this state by applying the straight 2 cents per mile rate upon all distances traveled.

Under the amendments of the passenger tariffs filed with the commission on Friday, all short mileage heretofore in effect will be abolished. In a statement issued on Friday by the state railroad commission appears the following:

"The commission would suspend this new rate if it had the power to do so, but owing to the fact that the legislature has fixed the fare by statute the commission has no jurisdiction where the fare charged does not exceed 2 cents a mile. However, the commission will compel the connection and running of trains so that at junction points passengers may obtain the advantages of short distances over two roads, notwithstanding such roads are competitors between the points of travel."

"A careful study of this matter is now being made by the commission and if the rates proposed go into effect there will be considerable rearrangement of passenger trains to enable connections to be made at junction points."

A Worthy Example. Because a soft maple tree which was on the dividing line of her property in Waupun, had shaded her home in the summer time, Miss Jennie Fairbanks, of that city, in selling her property stipulated in the deed that the new owners of the property should care for it as long as it lives, pruning it when necessary.

The Fairbanks property was bought by H. S. and A. O. Northrup, of Waupun, and in the deed Miss Fairbanks stated that "The soft maple tree on the boundary line of my property shall be cared for by the new owners all the remainder of its life, and shall not be cut down or harmed in any way." The deed also stated that the tree should receive all of the necessary care that a tree needed to keep it in a healthy condition, and should be watered and pruned whenever necessary.

Korslin-Mackaben. Miss Hannah Korslin of the town of Rudolph and Walter Mackaben of the town of Sigel were married this morning at 10:30 at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Korslin, Rev. Johnson of the Scandinavian Moravian church officiating. After the ceremony a wedding dinner was served to a number of relatives and guests. After a wedding tour in Minnesota and North Dakota they will be at home to their friends after April 30th on their farmstead on R. D. No. 4. The Tribune unites with their many friends in wishing them a happy wedded life.

What One Man Thinks.

On election day, in accordance with the state law, Juneau county voters elected a county board of education of five members. The gentlemen elected are good, substantial, intelligent men, fully capable of attending to any of the duties imposed upon them, and there is about as much said for the board as there is to a fifth wheel of a wagon, and the men elected would bestow a lasting and appreciated favor to Juneau county if they will immediately resign. Should they take this method, and resign in a body, there is no way to fill their places, until another election, and the county would thus be saved considerable useless expense.—Neenah Republican.

Brother Ware is not entirely alone in his estimate of this county board of education. Others have been wondering just what particular function this newly elected board is going to perform that could not have been accomplished under the old system. It looks very much as if the lawmakers down at Madison had created commissions for the state until they had run out of places for them, and then started in on the counties, with the idea of stocking them up along this line. The new board may prove a great value to the county, but it is difficult to see just where it will be at the present time.

Rev. Krusche Resigns. Pastorate Stevens Point Gazette.—Rev. A. Krusche, for 22 years pastor of the German Lutheran congregation in the town of Grant, has resigned and is now packing his household goods for shipment to Oscoda, Polk county. His son, John, has bought a furniture and undertaking business there and Rev. Krusche will assist in the store for a time. He may later again take up ministerial work. During all these years the reverend gentleman has worked hard and faithfully for the spiritual and material upbuilding of his people and now feels that he is entitled to a rest. Until a regular pastor is secured, services will be conducted at the Grant church by Rev. Pautz of Grand Rapids.

Rev. and Mrs. Krusche are visiting a few days with the lady's sister, Mrs. Gus Peickard, before going to their home in western Wisconsin.

Killed by Soo Train.—Joseph Klesmith, aged sixty, was struck and instantly killed by Soo line passenger train No. 1 at Stockton at 9:18 o'clock this morning. Klesmith was a deaf mute and had been employed about the farm of the Misses Mary and Honora Tovey at Stockton since last fall. This morning he had gone to the potato warehouse of A. W. Breitenstein, a short distance northwest of Stockton station, to secure a small two-wheel truck to be used in loading a car with potatoes. With the truck on his back and his head down to protect his face from the driving snow-storm that was raging, he was walking along the main track of the Soo line, returning to the Tovey farm, when train No. 1, which does not stop at Stockton, bore down upon him at a high rate of speed from the opposite direction. The tender of the locomotive struck him and carried him about fifty feet. He was dead before anyone got to him, his head and chest being badly crushed and both arms and legs broken. The train, which was in charge of Conductor J. E. Leary and Engineer W. J. Coakley, was brought to a standstill and the body was placed in charge of Station Agent Arndt Foststad.

Mayors Not Eligible.

Pittsville Record:—One of the comedies in the drama enacted of the city election held here yesterday was the finding at the last moment that neither the gentlemen running for mayor were eligible through the act of a recent legislature making it prohibitive for persons without a double set of papers to become electors, and hence forbidding them the holding of office. Edward Clack, one of the candidates was born in England. His father took out his first papers, and as the law then stood, was as much a citizen in the matter of the ballot as the man who is native born. This disqualifies Mr. Clack from holding office as also does it the other candidate for mayor, Charles A. Ludewig, born in Germany, and whose father, as was the case of many others deemed it of no necessity for the immediate filing of the final papers for simon pure citizenship.

This intelligence exploded like a bomb in a Quaker meeting early Monday morning, and later in the day a mass meeting was held at the city hall and the name of H. C. McCoy brought forth to fill the gap and bridge the warring factions. City Clerk Beyer was unable to take off the names of the two candidates and he was equally bound by the rules of the "little law book" from placing the name of Mr. McCoy on the printed ballot. It was necessary, then, for each voter to write the name of his candidate in, and this will go on record as the one time when a candidate was elected entirely by writing in the name. In the case of Mr. McCoy's acceptance of the office and his consequent withdrawal from the race for supervisor of the third ward, a candidate had to be elected in his stead, also entirely by writing in his name.

UNDERWOOD WINS

LEADER OF DEMOCRATS IN HOUSE
NOMINATED U. S. SENATOR FROM ALABAMA.

"DRYS" WIN IN MICHIGAN

Ingham, in which is located the State Capital, Votes Against the Saloons—One Switches to "Wet" Line—Results of Municipal Elections.

Birmingham, Ala., April 8.—Oscar W. Underwood, majority leader of the house of representatives at Washington, was nominated over Richmond Pearson Hobson by a substantial majority. Underwood's campaign managers said his lead was about twenty thousand.

The weather throughout the state was ideal for the primaries and indications were that the total vote would be the largest in years. While several personal encounters at the polls were reported none was of a serious nature.

Former Governor B. B. Comer led the three other candidates in the gubernatorial contest. Charles Henderson of Troy was second, and R. F. Kolb of Montgomery was third.

John W. Abernethy, representative from the state at large, and Representative J. T. Heflin from the Fifth district were unopposed.

Washington, April 7.—There was general rejoicing among members of all parties in Washington on Monday night when the news came that Representative Underwood had been victorious in his contest for the Alabama senatorship with Representative Hobson.

Detroit, Mich., April 8.—Returns from the 12 Michigan counties which voted on Monday on the local option question gave the drys a victory in the winning of Ingham county, in which Lansing, the state capital, is located. The wets won over one of the other counties and lost one of the anti-saloon forces. Ingham county, which has been wet, went dry by more than seven hundred votes.

The county situation follows: Clare went from dry to wet. Roscommon and Ingham went from wet to dry; Midland, Kalamazoo, Muskegon, Benzie, Shiawassee and Wexford remained dry, the latter two by small majorities. Oscoda, containing one saloon, went over to the drys. Arenac and Ogemaw remained wet.

The principal counties voting on the question were Ingham, Shiawassee and Wexford. In case Oscoda county remains dry, Michigan, as the result of the election, has 34 dry counties and 49 counties are wet. The important counties which chose to remain in the dry column did so by smaller majorities than two years ago.

In Flint, John R. MacDonald, Progressive, was elected mayor over Charles B. Mott, Independent candidate, and John Menton, Socialist.

In Grand Rapids Mayor Ellis was given the battle of his long political career by Doctor Sinclair.

In Kalamazoo Mayor A. B. Connally, Republican, was re-elected by the biggest majority a candidate for mayor or over received in that city. He was opposed by Charles Schaffer, president of the Trades and Labor council.

The following mayors of principal cities in which elections were held were elected:

MRS. L. M. N. STEVENS IS DEAD

President of W. C. T. U. Held Office Since 1898 and Worked Until Last.

Portland, Me., April 8.—Mrs. Lillian M. Stevens, president of the National Woman's Christian Temperance union, died here on Monday. She had been ill for several weeks with kidney trouble. It is expected that Miss Anna A. Gordon of Evanston, Ill., now vice-president at large, will succeed Mrs. Stevens. Mrs. Stevens, who was born at Dover, Me., 79 years ago, continued to the last the temperance work to which she has been devoted most of her life. Mrs. Stevens succeeded the late Frances E. Willard in the office of president of the W. C. T. U. in 1938. She first came into prominence in the seventies, when she participated in the organization of the Maine W. C. T. U. at Old Orchard. At that time she made her first public speech, and from then on she threw her whole heart into the work.

Noted Indiana Woman Dead.

REPORTS SPANIARDS

VILLA PUTS THEM ABOARD TRAIN FOR EL PASO.

Dead Choke Streets of Torreon Where Rebel Leaders' Men Brawl Over Plunder.

Torreon, Mex., April 7.—Gen. Francisco Villa ordered that the 600 Spaniards of this city be deported. He issued instructions Sunday that trains be provided at once and that the exodus to El Paso, Tex., begin. The Spaniards' property will be confiscated, temporarily at least.

Juarez, Mex., April 8.—Torreon is completely in the hands of the rebel army under General Villa. It is a city of ruins and horror. The buildings have been wrecked by shells and fire and the streets are full of dead.

After securing control of the city on Thursday the rebel soldiers were given the freedom of absolute license. Many were raving maniacs from their long vigil on the firing lines, loss of sleep and the excitement of battle.

Saloons were broken open and looted and a massacre of federal prisoners followed. In brawls over loot, many rebels were shot by their companions. Many of the rebel troops were so exhausted that they fell across the bodies of the dead and slept soundly for hours.

General Villa, without giving his men time to rest after their terrific eleven days' battle, ordered an immediate advance on Saltillo and Monterrey, two of the few important cities in northern Mexico still held by the federals.

HELD ON PARCEL POST THEFT

Substation Clerk, Street Car Conductor and Carpenter Are Arrested by Officials.

Buffalo, April 8.—Thefts of parcel post packages valued at $5,000 were disclosed after the arrest of three men here and the proprietor of a large mail-order house, which was the principal loser, claims the loss during the last year will reach $15,000. The men under arrest are Paul Miller, twenty-eight years old, employed at a post office substation; Bert Wilson, twenty-four years old, a street-car conductor, and Edward Harrington, forty-three years old a carpenter. Miller, the police state, admits the theft of watches and other jewelry worth about $5,000.

"LUMBER KING" OF U. S. DIES

Frederick W. Weyerhaeuser Succumbs to Pneumonia at His Home in Pasadena, Cal.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 7.—Frederick W. Weyerhaeuser, declared to be the richest man in the world, died here on Saturday at his mansion at Oak Knoll, Pasadena. A corps of physicians had battled in vain with death to save the life of the eighty-year-old monarch of the forest. His wealth, mostly lumber interests, is estimated to be between two hundred and three hundred million dollars. For several days Weyerhaeuser's condition was critical, his illness being diagnosed as pneumonia. For many years Mr. Weyerhaeuser was known as the "lumber king" of America.

BRITISH ARMY IN TURMOIL OVER ULSTER

Wholesale resignations among officers of the British army, who refuse to fight in the event of civil war in Ulster threaten to throw the army into an upheaval as great as that which threatens the cabinet. Col. J. E. B. Seely, secretary of war (left), resigned when the government repudiated his guaranty that force would not be used against the Ulster men. Lieut. Col. Arthur P. Bailey (center), commander of the "Queen's Own Hussars," resigned rather than fight against Ulster. Field Marshal Sir John French (right), chief of the general staff, has resigned because of the repudiation of the guaranty.

CREW VICTIMS OF CRASH

Passengers Saved From Death by Breaking of Coupling—Engine and Three Cars Plunge Off Structure—One Wreck Was Just Cleared Away.

Attica, Ind., April 7.—The Wabash river bridge collapsed on Sunday and hurled the Continental Limited train of the Wabash system into the ditch and partly into the river. Three persons were killed, another hurt and 50 others less seriously hurt. Wrecking crews had just cleared away the debris caused by a wreck earlier in the day. Apparently the supports of the bridge had been weakened, for the whole span under the engine crumpled.

The dead are: Tim Hull, engineer, Peru, Ind., married; Jacob Miller, fireman, Peru, Ind., married; J. A. Thomas, express messenger, Huntington, Ind. The engine, tender and three cars plunged through the broken span, all falling a distance of about thirty feet to the bank of the river, and one car partly submerged. Only the breaking of the couplings prevented the remainder of the train from falling, and only the fact that the cars were of steel averted terrible loss of life. One passenger car was half way over the edge of the pier on the river side of the broken span. When the forward cars fell the weight and momentum of this car sent the forward end toppling downward.

Every passenger was hurled in a screaming, fighting mass to the front end of the car, and finally it became apparent to them that the car was no longer moving, and that they would be all right if they would extricate themselves, which they did, quickly.

EMPLOYMENT IN STATE DECREASES

Slight Decline in March as Compared With February.

166 FOR EVERY 100 POSITIONS

Demand for Women Workers Show an Increase of 13 Per Cent—Building and Machinery Trades Make Gain.

Madison.—Employment in Wisconsin showed a slight decline in March as compared with February. Applicants for employment at the state employment offices numbered 166 for every 100 jobs, compared with 150 for every 100 jobs in February. In comparison with March a year ago, labor market conditions are much worse. Last year the employment offices reported 100 jobs for every 90 men.

The improvement in conditions which began in February continued slowly through March. The slight decline in demand in March was due to the closing of the ice harvesting season. Demand for women as compared with the supply increased 13 per cent in March over February.

The number of farm hands called for and placed in positions tripled. There was a good increase in the demand for building trade workers and the metal and machinery trades showed considerable improvement in the number of men hired. General common laborers were slightly in greater demand. No great numbers of men have been put to work by any one firm, but many employers are hiring a few at a time.

The superintendents and principals were told that experiments would be continued in Madison, in the hope of finding an accurate scale for measuring not only the intelligence, but the executive ability, the power of leadership, and the dominant traits of temperament of pupils. The speaker said investigators were working on this in this and foreign countries.

Board Offers New Building Code.

Criticism and suggestions on its proposed state building code are being solicited by the state industrial commission. The commission soon will issue printed copies of the proposed code on which prominent architects of Milwaukee and Madison and the commission's building inspector have been at work for several months.

The last legislature passed a law directing the commission to fix reasonable standards necessary to the safety and welfare of the occupants of public buildings and places of employment and when this code of building standards is adopted by the commission it will have the force of law. Before final action is taken, however, the proposed code will be sent to fire chiefs and architects throughout the state and to all other interested persons.

Public hearings will be held at Milwaukee, Madison, Superior, Eau Claire and Oshkosh.

The proposed code is in eight parts, the first four contain definitions and general requirements. These include a standard fire escape specifications, drawn up by the industrial commission in cooperation with the fire escape manufacturers themselves, requirements on sanitation and toilet rooms, issued in conjunction with the state board of health; size of courts and air shafts; boilers, furnaces, stoves, smokepipes, chimneys, etc., on which subjects the state fire marshal has cooperated.

Under the amendments of the passenger traffic filed with the commission, all short mileage heretofore in effect will be abolished.

As an illustration of the effect of this change, persons traveling from Madison to Appleton by way of Milwaukee will be forced to pay a higher fare than it going by way of Jefferson.

The fare from Madison to Milwaukee will be greater via Milton Junction than via Watertown.

In a statement issued by the state railroad commission appears the following:

"The commission would suspend this new rate if it had the power to do so, but owing to the fact that the legislature has fixed the fare by statute the commission has no jurisdiction where the fare charged does not exceed two cents a mile. However, the commission will compel connection and running of trains so that at junction points passengers may obtain the advantages of short distances over two roads, notwithstanding such roads are competitors between the points of travel.

Contracts for Food Awarded.

School Heads Close Meeting.

Madison.—During the next decade the chief advance in education will be made in the direction of devising units or scales of measurement and standards of achievement for school work," was the declaration of Prof. M. V. O'Shea of the University of Wisconsin, in an address before the Wisconsin Superintendents and Principals' association at the concluding session of a two days' meeting in Milwaukee.

He said that throughout the world men are investigating ways and means of determining the stage of mental development of pupils so that they can accurately locate individuals in their school course.

"A boy may be ten years old physically, but only eight or nine years old mentally," he said. "The practice has been to group all children together, according to their physical age, but the demand for precision and efficiency in education is leading people to classify on a different basis that of native ability."

Professor O'Shea gave the results of extensive investigations that have been made on the school children of Madison in the attempt to devise measuring scales for intelligence. Charts presenting the results of these investigations showed that such a scale could be used. Professor O'Shea showed that in some schools pupils differed in native intelligence by five years. Efficient work in the school room requires that a well-endowed pupil should be permitted to work through the grades as fast as possible, and not be held back by those whose intelligence is distinctly inferior.

The superintendents and principals were told that experiments would be continued in Madison, in the hope of finding an accurate scale for measuring not only the intelligence, but the executive ability, the power of leadership, and the dominant traits of temperament of pupils. The speaker said investigators were working on this in this and foreign countries.

Other speakers were Prof. E. C. El-Hott, Madison, "The Survey and Its Value," Inspector E. L. Terry, Madison, who spoke on a suggestion for the six years' high school.

The report of the committee on high school dormitories was read by E. W. Waite of Jefferson because of the illness of P. F. Nevevan of New Richmond. The report showed that the need of better dormitory facilities for nonresident pupils. It also cited as harmful self-boarding of pupils, saying that some go home Friday night and bring edibles enough on Monday to last them throughout the week.

Myron E. Keats of Oconomowoc was elected president and the other officers as follows: Vice-president, T. J. Jones, West Allis; secretary-treasurer, T. J. Holt, Edgerton.

Two-Cent Rate for Roads.

In conformity with plan to raise rates all over the country, the railroad rates of Wisconsin have filed notice with the railroad rate commission that after May 1 they will raise the passenger rates in this state by applying the straight two cents per mile rate upon all distances traveled.

The commission is powerless to stop this raise, and unless it is included in the call for a special session and the present law is amended by the legislature the rates in Wisconsin will be raised.

Under the amendments of the passenger traffic filed with the commission, all short mileage heretofore in effect will be abolished.

As an illustration of the effect of this change, persons traveling from Madison to Appleton by way of Milwaukee will be forced to pay a higher fare than it going by way of Jefferson.

$20,000 for Wisconsin.

The state of Wisconsin has been enriched to the extent of $10,000 by the five per cent tax levied on the receipts of the various licensed boxing clubs in the state since the new law governing boxing contests has been in force. With the boxing season only half over, Walter H. Linger, chairman of the boxing commission, says the total return to the state from this source will amount to almost twenty thousand dollars by the end of the season. The total expense to the state for the commission will not exceed $5,000.

Totals:

Total state tax against Wood County for 1912, $3,800.00; for 1913, $3,800.00.

Total state tax increase for Wood County for 1913:
You will note over $19,000.00 of this increase is for educational purposes, and that in the year of 1912 we paid no taxes towards University, Normal School, State Capitol and for general purposes, which in the year of 1913 amounted to $37,065.38. So it seems as if a considerable part of our state tax increase is really a delinquent state tax.

The following is what we paid to the state for highway purposes and what we received back for the same purpose, from the state:

The State Highway Commission was allowed out of the state general fund for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, for surveys and all other expenses, $60,000.00.
For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1914, 90,000.00.

The share to be paid by Wood County of the above total, $1,555.50.
Our state highway tax for 1912 was 3,640.23.
Our state highway tax for 1913 was 17,111.80.

Total state highway tax paid by Wood County for the two years, $22,307.53
State aid for highways received by Wood County in 1913, $10,575.00.
State aid for highways due Wood County for 1914, 14,867.00.
Received in these two years state surveys to the value of about, 1,000.00.

Total rec'd. from state, $26,442.00
Total paid to state for highway purposes, 22,307.53.
Excess received by Wood County from the state over the amt. paid, $4,134.47.

Much has been said against high taxes, and a special attack has been made on the high state tax. But there is certainly some ground for just criticism of this tax. The good effect of this tax is lost by the impression one gets when he reads between the lines and is led to suspect that the writers are moved to attack political, partisan, or private considerations, and that their professed sympathy with the tax payers is not sincere.

Such attacks are often made with much regard for truth. To illustrate this kind of bias, I will call attention to an article published in the Milwaukee Free Press on March 1st and sent to our town officers in which the writer says:

"Hence, instead of petitioning as they did last spring for anywhere from $1,000.00 to $5,000.00 and more, should cut down such amounts to one-tenth at least."

Is the writer ignorant of the law which says that no town or village can get state aid, unless it raises at least $400.00 for roads, or $250.00 for bridge purposes. The cutting down as the writer suggests is absurd and would leave the petitioners entitled to no state aid.

The facts are that out of twenty-two towns, villages and cities in this county, ten of them petitioned the county for less than $1,000.00 only three went over $1,500, and one village went as high as $3,000.00.

As good roads concerns everyone, I ask that a fair amount of truth be used when criticizing our state aid road law. But keep right on criticizing, even if you must stoop to the odious method of making personal attacks in a slandering way.

Yours,
L. AMUNDSON,
County Highway Commissioner.

GROCERS MAY CARRY CANNED EGG STOCK

Washington, D. C., Apr. 14.—"One can of condensed milk, a can of asparagus tips, a can of beans, a can of beef and a can of eggs," says a grocer, "are the staples of the grocery business."

For one thing canned eggs will be cheaper than eggs in the shell, for they will have been put up in the great egg producing farm country at a time when hens are laying and fresh eggs are almost a drug on the market. The cans can be shipped in refrigerator cars closely packed and there will be no waste space for cardboard packing, while the present 10 per cent loss for breakage will be saved.

Canned eggs have been tested after having been kept in storage a year and their quality and flavor found unimpaired. As one investigator put it, the chief difference was that you opened them with a can opener instead of a spoon. They come to the consumer frozen, and when melted they look and smell like fresh eggs broken into a bowl and stirred until the whites and yolks are mixed, except that they are a little thicker.

Similar experiments have been made with dried eggs or egg powder and this, too, will keep for months, provided it is kept at a low temperature. It is hardly possible, therefore, that canned or dried eggs will be ever displaced on store shelves.

An egg canning plant, which the department regards as a standard, modern room of a hospital than a commercial institution. The eggs on their arrival at the plant are sent to a chilled room and kept there for twenty-four hours at a temperature a few degrees above freezing. Then they are candied and all suspicious ones are discarded.

The graded eggs then go to a refrigerated room that is as aseptic and as well lighted as it is possible to make it. No dust or flies can get in and the temperature never rises above 65 degrees. It is watertight and steamproof, so that it can be washed and steamed throughout. The tests for breaking the eggs are all made so they can be sterilized in live steam.

Before beginning work the operative sterilize their hands, much as a surgeon does before beginning an operation. The sterilization also extends to the donning of clean white caps and gowns.

Inspection is strict. Each egg is broken into a separate cup and inspected before being put into the sterilized cans. Every doubtful egg is discarded, the cup again sterilized and the operative's hands washed before touching another egg. Eggs get sufficient attention the egg breakers are not allowed to exceed a definite number of eggs per hour.

The canning of eggs is of immense benefit to the farmer because it provides him with a steady market at a time when warm weather makes it imperative that he dispose of his eggs as soon as possible. It is also a market for small eggs, dark shelled eggs and other varieties that do not sell well in the shell.

The law requires that Assessors shall attend such meeting. A cordial invitation is extended to members of Boards of Review to attend this meeting. One of the members of the State Tax Commission will be present and speak at the meeting. Very respectfully, ANDREW P. BEN, Assessor of Income.

The usual competitive examination for rural carriers is from $900 to $1,200 per annum. Age 18 to 45, on the date of the examination. The examination is waived in cases of persons honorably discharged from the United States military or naval service.

A PLAN FOR ACTION TOWARD ECONOMY

BY GEO. L. WILLIAMS.
The meetings which are being held throughout the State with regard to the question of high taxes, seem to me to call for some definite plan of action.

If these meetings continue and no campaign for the future is arranged they will fail when election time comes. Next November, as predicted by such men as Tax-Commissioner Lyon, the Governor and other defenders of high taxes.

Now I want as briefly as possible to submit a scheme for future action, in order to start the ball rolling on this line and get things boiled down to a substantial basis. In this connection I am going to assume as demonstrated and demonstrable truths, the following:

First: There can be no question but that our present method of doing away with political contests and candidates on political lines in our municipal affairs, is a great success, and is tending all the time toward better business methods and better management of our cities throughout the state.

Second: There is not at present and has not been for some years in our state affairs, any particular difference between Republicans and Democrats. In other words, there are no great political questions at issue in our state affairs.

Third: So far as the excessive amount of legislation during the past two or three sessions of the Legislature is concerned, Republicans, Democrats and Socialists are all about equally to blame. Running after strange gods and creating commissions in order to furnish jobs for political henchmen, is as true of one party as of another; the only difference being that the majority gets a little more of the swag than does the minority.

Fourth: There is no more reason why there should be political nominees for Governor and members of the legislature than there is why there should be political nominees for Mayor and Aldermen of the City of Milwaukee, or any other city in the state. The question with regard to the election of a United States Senator is heretofore to be settled by the people at the November election and there can be no contesting hereafter.

Fifth: Political caucuses by the members of the assembly and the senators, and the appointment of leaders and henchmen to run things through the Legislature, is one of the greatest nuisances of our present method of enacting laws for the whole state.

No, based on the foregoing, I submit the following propositions:

1. That meetings be continued throughout the state and that counties elect delegates to a State Convention. That a non-political State Convention be held during the latter part of May or the early part of June, and that a platform be agreed upon, a committee selected to continue the work, and such other business as would ordinarily be done by a State Convention, be transacted.

2. That one of the planks of the platform adopted be to the effect that candidates for state offices and for state senators and assemblymen, whether Republican or Democrat, be required to pledge themselves to carry out a purely business session of the Legislature, and to this end that such session shall not continue to exceed ninety days.

3. That in case persons nominated for these offices, Republican, Democrat or Socialists, will not pledge themselves to a proposition similar to the foregoing, then, that opposing candidates be nominated by petition who will pledge themselves to carry out a purely business administration of the State affairs.

4. That the hold-over senators be requested to personally, in writing, pledge themselves to the same effect that the others are required to pledge themselves to. There may be, of course, some howling on the back seat, but there will be a hereafter for those of the hold-over senators who are not willing to come up to the scratch and do business on business lines.

5. I suggest as the plank and slogan on which to stand and shout, or, in other words, the battle cry of freedom, something like this: "Business, not politics is demanded," or, "A purely business administration wanted."

In conclusion, I wish to say that personally I am not in favor of repealing near all of the laws which have been passed during recent years, creating commissions. My view is that there are some good ones and many unnecessary and bad ones not required on any substantial grounds. Further, it seems to me that the time is ripe now in this State so that Democrats and Republicans can get together in business affairs of the state.

Hope that the foregoing will result in bringing out the opinions of others and in bringing us to some definite and certain results. I remain, Yours respectfully,
GEORGE L. WILLIAMS.

Grand Rapids, Wisconsin, April 13, 1914.

Prize of $1.00 won by Mrs. W. Proteau of Port Edwards. Out of the dozens of letters received Mrs. Proteau was the only one with the correct answer.

The word "baby" was left out in the Ragan ad. Try again this week.

Every once in a while a report is sent out from Madison regarding one or the other of the many commissions, telling of the great cost they save the people, which reminds us of the story they tell on Bob Evans who went to church and finding a vacant pew sat down in it. Finally the owner came and not wishing to cause a disturbance wrote on a card, "The pew you are sitting in costs me $1,000 a year," and handed the card to Evans. Giving it a hurried glance he turned the card over and wrote "It costs too much."—Marshall Herald.

POTATO SPECIAL

Free Lectures With Special Exhibit Car.
—The Chicago and North Western Ry. co-operating with the University of Wisconsin Agricultural College will operate a special demonstration and exhibit car, and has arranged for free lectures which will be given at Grand Rapids 10:00 a. m. Monday, April 20, 1914.

A special feature of the demonstration car will be a large exhibit of the choice standard varieties of potatoes. At each of the above meetings, commercial potato growing problems in Wisconsin, such as selection of seed, soil, time for planting, cultivation, fertilizing, etc., will be thoroughly discussed by potato growing experts including representatives from the state Agricultural College and Wisconsin Potato Growers Association. Their talks will be practical in every way and they will interest you, and the information gained can be put to use with splendid results. Farmers and others interested in the building of the potato industry in the state of Wisconsin should not fail to attend and participate in the discussion.

You can't afford to miss seeing these exhibits and hearing the lectures. Remember the date and time and be sure to attend.

Better to Be Safe Than Sorry.
Eggs Easter meeting of the Parental Association will take place in the Lincoln High school auditorium at eight o'clock Friday night. An entertaining program is planned and the men and women of the city are urged to come. The particular attraction will be the opportunity to meet Mr. C. W. Price, Assistant to the Industrial Commission of the State of Wisconsin. He will be the speaker of the evening and there is not in the state a man possessing a more winning, pleasing personality, a better speaker, nor a man who knows his subject more thoroughly. Mr. Price is in demand all over the country but he is giving the State of Wisconsin the first call on his services. Grand Rapids is fortunate to have him for three days, Friday, Saturday and Sunday of this week. He makes an inspection of the paper mills here and at Biran on Saturday. Sunday afternoon speaks to the men at Biran employed in the men at Biran employed in their new Club House at four o'clock.

It is better to be careful than to be crippled. There is no accident that is necessary. Grand Rapids proposes to have no more accidents; no more fathers hurt nor children killed. It is wholly unnecessary. Be sure to hear Mr. Price. Boost for the Safety Movement.

W. H. Wright, one of the old residents of the city of Grand Rapids, died at his home on the east side on Sunday morning after an illness of some length from diabetes. He has been more or less under the weather for some time past, but during the past few months had been confined to his home most of the time.

Deceased was born in Allegheny county, N. Y., on the 2nd of September, 1850, and was therefore in his 64th year at the time of his death.

He is survived by his wife and six daughters, who have the sympathy of the community service will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. R. J. Locke of the Congregational church will conduct the services. Mr. Wright was a member of the Odd Fellows, and they will have charge of the funeral.

BALL PLAYER LOSES AN ARM

Leslie Hillecker, a young man who is quite well known in this city, was run over by the evening passenger train near the St. Paul depot Friday evening, the result being that he received such injuries that it was necessary to amputate his left arm just below the elbow.

It appears that Hillecker tried to board the train after it had started for the purpose of beating his way, but that in doing so he lost his footing and fell in such a manner that his arm and hand was caught beneath the wheels, resulting in injuries as above stated.

Hillecker played ball with the Stevens Point team last season, and has also played with the local team, and his friends in this city were sorry to hear of the accident. He was taken to Riverview hospital where the operation was performed.

SALOONKEEPERS MUST CARE FOR "JAGS."
That a saloonkeeper is morally bound to care and provide for a person who becomes intoxicated in his saloon and that failure to do so subjects the owner of the place to a damage suit, is the contention of Judge Henry Grass of Green Bay. Last winter a man by the name of Joe Beaulieu, a farmer, got intoxicated in a Green Bay saloon and on his way home froze his feet and hands. He then began action for $10,000, holding the saloonkeeper responsible for his misfortune.

"THE TRAFFIC."
—Rachael Marshall's new play "The Traffic," which comes to Daly's Theatre on Thursday, April 23, has created a positive sensation in Chicago where it has been playing nightly to crowded houses. It is said to be the most astonishing dramatic proposition produced in ten years. An unusual play by an unusual woman, a splendid company of capable actors and a stage of intellect which is notable for accuracy and completeness are some of the promises made for the production.

Rachael Marshall, the young author of the new piece, is a descendant of Chief Justice Marshall, a colleague and follower of Jane Adams of Hull House, a writer of many successful short stories, sketches and essays and a woman of intense sincerity and indomitable energy in the cause of her sex.

"The Traffic," deals with so-called white slavery, but approaches the topic from an industrial rather than from strictly ethical standpoint. The situations and dialogue are said to abound in trenchant wit, and shrewdly practical philosophy.

That it has fulfilled the promise that it portrays the naked truth about the commerce in girls, but that it has surpassed expectations in the superiority of its company of players and in the perfect stage craft of its presentation has been attested to by no less personages than Mrs. Gertrude Howe Britten of Hull House, Lieut. Gov. Barrett O'Hare of Illinois, Maj. Fuchsenberger of the Chicago Police Department, William A. Pinkerton and others prominently life of the city and state, who see in "The Traffic" a play that can accomplish much towards bettering a condition that has shocked all thinking men and women of the age. Advance Sale Monday. Mail orders now. Prices 25c to $1.50.

Death of Ludwig Olson.
Ludwig Olson died in this city at the home of Dr. A. L. Ridgman on Saturday morning after an illness of some length, death being caused by heart trouble.

Mr. Olson was married to Miss Georgita Ridgman last fall and the young couple resided at Owen for several months, when Mr. Olson was taken so seriously ill that he was brought to this city and taken to the home of Dr. Ridgman, where it was hoped that with proper treatment he might be cured of his trouble. However, nothing could be done to prolong his life materially, and he continued to grow worse until the end came.

A short service was held here on Saturday and the remains were taken to the same day to Owen, the home of his mother, where they were interred.

The untimely death of this young man was certainly a most sad case, and the widow and other relatives have the sympathy of the community in their sad affliction.

Easter Service Largely Attended.
The Easter services at the Congregational church last Sunday were largely attended, special preparation having been made to have the service something out of the ordinary.

A special train from Stevens Point brought over about a hundred people, some thirty of whom were Knight Templars. The local Knights met them at the depot from where they marched to the city and later attended the services at the church in a body.

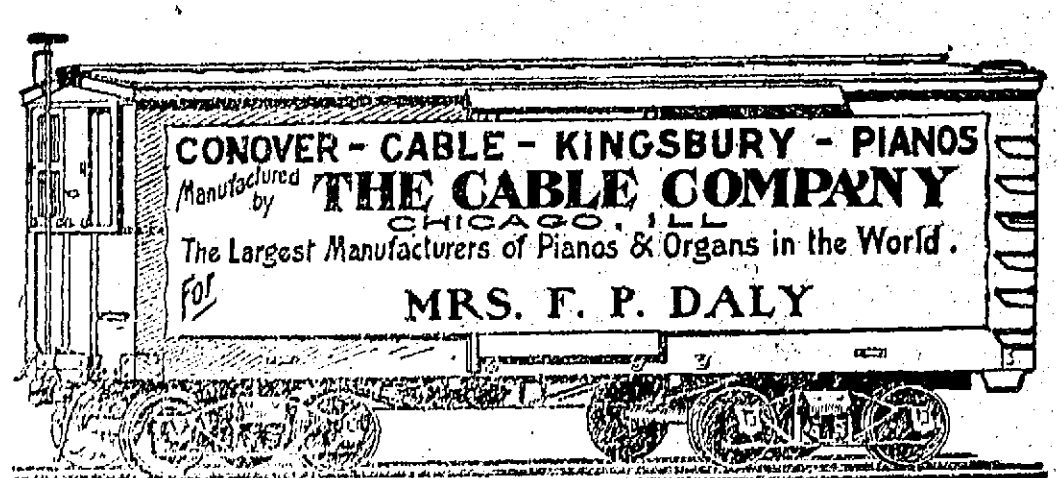

The decoration of the church was under the supervision of J. B. Mull, and this part of the matter was attended to in a most artistic manner. Personal calls and Easter Hille were used in profusion and the edifice presented a most handsome appearance. The music for the occasion was under the direction of rs. J. H. Wright, and this part of the service was appreciated by all.

City To Do Sprinkling.
At the last meeting of the City Council it was decided that the city should do the sprinkling in the future. With this end in view the city fathers are negotiating with the Studebaker people for the purchase of an oil sprinkler, it being the intention to sprinkle some of the streets with oil, while on others water will be used.

The city is also negotiating for a street sweeper which will be used to clean up that part of the city where the streets have been paved.

TEA GOWN SURVIVES

TOO CHARMING A GARMENT TO BE DISCARDED.

Modern Style Effects Are Being Introduced Into the Robe d'Interieur, Which Need Not Follow Any Special Mode.

Not so very long ago a disquieting rumor went the round to the effect that the days of the tea gown were numbered. It was stated in so many words that the craze for motoring had practically killed the graceful and charming robe d'interieur and that while women were so busy rushing from one end of the country to another, wrapped to the eyes in hideous motor suits, they left themselves no time for choosing or wearing any kind of gown which could only make a rare and brief appearance by their own fireside.

Fortunately, however, for those who like to think that there must be some women left who can appreciate the charm of quiet restfulness, and who like to dress themselves suitably when they have an opportunity of enjoying even a brief lull in the round of pleasure and excitement, the tea gown seems to have survived these and other vicissitudes.

At the present moment it may certainly be found in numerous attractive guises, and arranged in so many different ways that only the woman who is entirely devoid of the dress instinct should have any difficulty in discovering some style which will bring out all her good points and entirely conceal her deficiencies, always supposing that she should possess any.

There is another pleasant point to be considered when the tea gown of today is under discussion, and that is the undoubted fact that in the case of garments of this description a great deal is left to individual taste, and no hard and fast rules are laid down by Dame Fashion. There is no special mode which must be followed, regardless altogether of the natural line of the figure. If your robe d'interieur is charming in itself, as regards color and fabric, and, more important still, if it should prove unquestionably becoming, no other consideration need have the slightest weight.

Transparent coat effects are seen on many of the new tea gowns. A very effective garment of this kind is arranged with a draped overcoat, or even spotted net, made in kimono style, but complete in itself, so that it may be worn at will with gowns in widely different colors and materials. In the case of the tea gown under consideration with this spotted net, the under-robe is of orange charmeuse, gathered closely with a frilled heading, drawn in on elastic at the waist, and made with a very long train.

Model of Pekin robe cut straight in front and draped in back.

NEW TAILORED COSTUME

STYLES FOR LITTLE FOLKS

Spring Garments Are to Be Trimmed With Lace in an Elaborate Fashion.

What mother is there who does not at times search high and low in the shops for "something new" in the line of children's wear? For amid the bewildering array of American and imported models there always seem to be but one or two styles for little folk.

A careful survey of the new spring styles for children, which have not yet been shown to the general public, indicates that tailors, point d'esprit, pique and embroidered valls will be the favored materials in the fashioning of their clothes.

For children who range in age from two to five years there seems to be a much better choice of models and trimmings and style lines are as widely diversified. The waist, which is most frequently marked by a wash of some kind, may be either low or high, after the Greenaway fashions, which may bring into popularity the rather long skirt of that period. The new spring garments for children seem to be trimmed large with lace—hand-crocheted Irish and Valenciennes predominating. Thin buttons, covered with silk or satin to match the encircling sash, are also very frequently seen.

COUNTRY OF PEACE

Principle of Personal Freedom Also Dominant in Holland.

Liberty Has Always Been the Prevailing Passion of the Dutch and Arts and Sciences of the Race Have Grown in This Atmosphere.

New York.—There is hardly a country in the world where the principle of personal freedom is so deeply rooted in the hearts of the people as it is in the Dutch. Holland was the first country to recognize and establish the right of individual liberty—the right to think and the right to speak. Holland has always extended a hearty welcome to all those who were oppressed and persecuted in other lands: Huguenots from France, Puritans from England, Jews from Spain and Germany, they all fled to Holland and made the country prosperous.

This is what appeals to Americans: What Holland has been in the past, America is today. Holland was the land of religious liberty in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. America is the land of intellectual and economic freedom of the present age.

Freedom has been the dominant note during the entire history of the Dutch, and art and science have grown in the atmosphere of liberty, and reached the highest level. Go and admire the masterpieces of Rembrandt, Hals, Potter and Dou, and you will realize that their works were born in the land of the free.

In the field of science, Holland has accomplished more than any other country of its size. Coeter, Spinoza, de Vries, Van't Hoff are known all the world over, and of late years five or more Hollanders have obtained the Nobel prize for science, for chemistry and for peace!

Holland—the Home of Peace!

RAPID LIFE IN WINDY CITY

According to New York Woman's Story Its Reputation Has Basis Other Than Humorous.

There is a New York woman who goes twice a year to Chicago with her husband, when the latter makes periodical business trips. They always stay at the same hotel—a large, comfortable house, which gets a good deal of Chicago and Illinois trade. The New Yorkers have come to be known to the woman housekeeper of the hotel. They have just returned from their latest journey to the city by Lake Michigan, and this is what Mrs. New York says:

"I always used to think that the humorous paragraphs in the papers dealing with the frequency of Chicago divorces were jokes, but I know now they have a solid basis of fact. The reason? Because when we were in Chicago this time the housekeeper of the hotel said to me: 'I'm so glad to see you back again, ma'am. And you know—if you'll excuse me saying it—you're the only lady that comes back here after years with the same husband.'—New York Times.

This would be a much more pleasant world if there weren't so many ways of making people unhappy.

Backache Warns You

Backache is one of Nature's warnings of kidney weakness. Kidney disease kills thousands every year.

Don't neglect a bad back. If your back hurts it is a warning to stop or rest. If there is irregularity in the secretions, suspect your kidneys. If you suffer from backache, dizziness and are tired, nervous and worn-out, you have further proof.

400 South Horning Ave., Chicago, Ill.—"I was attacked with a breaking out on the inside of my arms. Mustard an Ancient Remedy.

Mustard is one of the most ancient of medicines. Pythagoras, who flourished between 600 and 600 years before Christ, mentions it. Hippocrates, who was born in 460 B. C., employed it. Pliny the Elder, writing in 77 A. D., describes three different kinds of mustard, and says the seeds were imported to Italy from Egypt originally.

The Romans used it as a stimulant after a cold bath; they mixed mustard and olive oil in equal parts and used this as a liniment for stiffness of the muscles. They knew the virtues of mustard poultices and of mustard as an emetic. As a remedy for the stings of scorpions and serpents, they pounded it, mixed it with vinegar and applied it to the wound.

They also made a drink out of it, fermenting the seed in a fiery spirit. The liquor thus produced they called mustum ardens, which means burning wine. The word mustard is probably derived from this.

Parson Know Better.

Uncle Jim Sugarfoot killed a fine rabbit for the entertainment of Parson Heavegrace, who was expected to dinner, but as rabbits were not in season he thought to avoid what might prove an embarrassing situation by making the parson think it was chicken he was eating.

"Brother Heavegrace," said Uncle Jim, when it came time for a second helping, "what part of a bird would you like now?"

With a merry twinkle in his half-closed eyes Parson Heavegrace replied: "If you all don't mind Ah thinks Ah'll take do gazard."—Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

Crushed Morocco.

Crushed morocco leads the fashion in the hairless pelts used for making desk sets, guestroom information cards, hall mail boxes, toilet articles, bags of all sizes, and for binding dinner records, theater notes, travel impressions and all other special books that are included among the intimate belongings of the truly smart woman.

The crushed morocco is so utterly unlike the uncrushed leather that it is readily recognized. It has a beautifully smooth and glossy surface that is fascinating to handle, and it comes in the loveliest shades of rose, blue, mauve and blue. Some of the pieces are lettered in glossy black and others in gold or white, but silver on its soft shading is prettiest of all. Compared with the crushed morocco, the rough-surfaced kind looks crude, harsh and cheap.

SET OFF SPRING COAT SUIT

Dainty Accessories That Must Be Worn If a Woman Would Look Her Best.

Dainty neckwear, blouses and vests are absolutely essential to complete the modish spring coat suit, as most of these suits are designed with the display of these accessories. The little sleeveless underblouse shown on the left had a foundation of cream net and was trimmed with surplice bands of Venice lace edged with narrow plaiting of net and having a de Medici collar of the lace. Other blue brocade coats of the collar were converted into the dainty collar on the right. The collar consisted of alternately plaid points of the silk and lace. The narrow revers were of brocade covered with net.

Background for Gems.

A tulle green makes the best background for diamonds, excepting perhaps black and brocade.

DICTATES FASHION

Checks and plaid rattines are in demand.

Black and white china frocks are seen in the shops.

High and low collars are in fashion at present.

There is a revival of cross-stitch in artistic needlework.

Beads in flaming yellow pink color are called tanglebeads.

Rice cloth is a sheer cotton, with an woven knotted yarn.

Multicolored stripes are seen even in wash silks and crepes.

The woman who is well dressed wears the jersey silk or jersey woolen top petticoat. They take up small space and do not wrinkle.

Removable Muff Lining.

If a muff has been carried for some time it is very likely to soil light gloves when they come in contact with the lining. To overcome this a removable lining is effective. A white lining of silk or satin, made the correct size, and with a lace trimmed frill at either end can be slipped in when white or light gloves are to be worn, and safely pinned into position. When dark gloves are to be worn again the special lining is removed, to keep it fresh.

London.—A submerged tube railway between Scotland and Ireland is prophesied by a Chicago engineer named H. G. Tyrrell, as a remedy for Ireland's unrest.

As far as size is concerned, Holland is a small country, but it may well be proud of its past and its present, and it still has a mission to fulfill in the future civilization of man.

lined, and it came out victorious. It has also struggled (is struggling still) with the internal foe, the water, and every inch of land has been conquered from the sea!

Today in Holland there is harmony in the land and peace with the world outside. Holland has been chosen by the rest of the world as the great center, from which the idea of peace and peaceful arbitration may spread, slowly, but surely, over all the nations of the earth.

The first book on international peace the world has ever seen was written by a Hollander, Hugo de Groot, as early as 1621. The world now seems ready to apply the idea of peace, and a large number of disputes between nations have already been settled in the Peace palace at The Hague.

"Those are very pretty," her mistress said. "What is the littlest one named?"

Too Many Tomorrows

Civilization would advance a hundred years in many hours if humanity would cease to put things off indefinitely by leaving them until a tomorrow, and decide to do them TODAY.

It is the tomorrows of life that turn many a near success into an utter failure. It is the custom we have of putting off the aches and pains that eventually bring us to a stage of chronic sickness where relief is almost impossible, and life a burden instead of a joy.

Why not determine to attend to your trouble TODAY? No matter what may be your ailment, its relief will be augmented by prompt attention, and your inconvenience of shorter duration.

All kinds of talk was abolished for the time being and the only thing that received any notice were the political issues of the day. They say that a man who was coming up from the mill yard, stepped a friend and told him that a man had just been killed down there. "What so?" said the friend; "which end of town was he from?"

It looks very much as if some of the paving that was done last summer on the west side was going to prove a decided failure, as there are many places where the work has now more or less loose on the surface. These macadamized roads cost enough so that the taxpayers are not anxious to see them go to pieces the first year they are put in use, and it is to be hoped that some method of repairing the bad spots will be discovered, altho this is said to be a difficult matter.

TO FORFEIT SALOON BONDS

When the bond of a saloonkeeper is violated it shall be the duty of the district attorney to bring an action in the name of the state to recover the $500. due the state as forfeiture, says Attorney General Owen to District Attorney David Rogue, Columbia county. Saloonkeepers who sell liquor to habitual drunkards, posted persons, or minors, are guilty of a breach of the bond under this opinion and it is made the duty of the district attorney to prosecute. Although Wisconsin saloonkeepers have always been required to give $500. bonds, investigation by the attorney general's department does not disclose that there has ever been an action to collect as the result of a violation.

"The correct practice in such cases, it seems to me," writes the attorney general, "is for the party in possession of the evidence to lay it before the district attorney and the district attorney should then make and sign the complaint and bring the action in the name of the state. It is the duty of the district attorney to prosecute such an action as soon as he has sufficient evidence in his possession showing that the bond has been breached."

"I do not believe that a private citizen can bring this action."

For a Spring Cleaning.

Spring is at hand. Flowers will soon begin to bud and blossom, the trees to taken on their summer verdure. Another year—let us hope with the same party officials—will be ushered in at the city hall, and the city will be a better place for it.

Now is the time when more people are on the streets than ever. They must remember not to litter them with paper and other refuse. They must remember also that the alleys must be kept clean, for now is the time to propagate these pests. The mosquito thrives on the uncleanness of the people in regard to such matters as the disposal of garbage and other litter.

It is well to remember these things. Horses, wagons, and automobiles passing down a dirty alley into a clean street make the street dirty, and a dirty street is a disease breeder. No one knows the source of all sicknesses, but if they could be traced, it might astonish people to learn what a proportion come from mere lack of cleanliness.

By not keeping your yard clean, you are apt to make yourself or your children ill; you are really also risking the health of your neighbor. So clean up. If it isn't already in a condition and keep it so. Clean your basement, also. Here is one place that needs strict attention. Don't let foul odors fill your home.

With your neighbor, if necessary, clean up the vacant lot near your home. Weeds, and rubbish thrown on these vacant places, do much harm. Pile rubbish where the city wagons can get it and haul it away. Now is the time to think of these things.

A clean administration means a clean city, but only insofar as the people themselves help. The city will do its share in faithful sprinkling and removal of dirt from the streets, but the citizens must co-operate, and let none of them forget to do so in every particular.—Milwaukee News.

Will Charge Flat Rate.

In conformity with a plan to raise rates all over the country, the railroad of Wisconsin have filed notice with the railroad rate commission that after May 1, they will raise the passenger rates in this state by applying the straight 2 cents per mile rate upon all distances traveled.

Under the amendments of the passenger tariffs filed with the commission on Friday, all short mileage heretofore in effect will be abolished. In a statement issued on Friday, the state railroad commission appears the following:

"The commission would suspend this low rate if it had the power to do so, but owing to the fact that the legislature has fixed the fare by statute the commission has no jurisdiction where the fare charged does not exceed 2 cents a mile. However, the commission will compel the connection and running of trains so that at junction points passengers may obtain the advantages of short distances over two roads, notwithstanding such roads are competitors between the points of travel."

A careful study of this matter is now being made by the commission and if the rates proposed go into effect there will be considerable rearrangement of passenger trains to enable connections to be made at junction points."

A Worthy Example.

Because a soft maple tree which was on a dividing line of her property in Waupun, had shaded her home in the summer time, Miss Jennie Fairbanks, of that city, in selling her property stipulated in the deed that the new owners of the property should care for it as long as it lives, pruning it when necessary.

The Fairbanks' property was bought by H. S. and A. O. Northrup, of Waupun, and in the deed Miss Fairbanks stated that "The soft maple tree on the boundary line of my property shall be cared for by the new owners all the remainder of its life, and shall not be cut down or harmed in any way." The deed also stated that the tree shall receive all of the necessary care that a tree needed to keep it in a healthy condition, and should be watered and pruned whenever necessary.

Korslin-Mackaben.

Miss Hannah Korslin of the town of Rudolph and Walter Mackaben of the town of Sigel were married this morning at 10:30 at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Korslin. Rev. Johnson of the Scandinavian Moravian church officiating. After the ceremony a wedding dinner was served to a number of relatives and guests. After a wedding tour in Minnesota and North Dakota they will be at home to their friends after April 30th on their farmstead on R. D. No. 4. The Tribune unites with their many friends in wishing them a happy wedded life.

What One Man Thinks.

On election day, in accordance with the state law, Juneau county voters elected a county board of education of five members. The gentlemen elected are good, substantial, intelligent men, fully capable of attending to any of the duties imposed upon them. The Republican believes, however, that there is about as much to be expected of a board as there is to a fifth wheel of a wagon, and the men elected would bestow a lasting and appreciated favor to Juneau county if they will immediately resign. Should they take this method, and resign, in a body, there is no way to fill their places, until another election, and the county would thus be saved considerable useless expense.—Necedah Republican.

Brother Ware is not entirely alone in his estimate of this county board of education. Others have been wondering just what particular function this newly elected board is going to perform that could not have been accomplished under the old system. It looks very much as if the lawmakers down at Madison had created commissions for the state until they had missions for places for them, and then run out of places for them, with the idea of stocking them up along this line. The new board may prove a great value to the county, but it is difficult to see just where it will be at the present time.

Rev. Krusche Resigns Pastorate.

Stevens Point Gazette.—Rev. A. Krusche, for 22 years pastor of the German Lutheran congregation in the town of Grant, has resigned and is now packing his household goods for shipment to Oshkosh. Polk county. John, who has bought a furniture and undertaking business there and Rev. Krusche will assist in the store for a time. He may later again take up ministerial work. During all these years the reverend gentleman has worked hard and faithfully for the spiritual and material upbuilding of his people and now feels that he is entitled to a rest. Until a regular pastor is secured, services will be conducted at the Grant church by Rev. Paul of Grand Rapids.

Rev. and Mrs. Krusche are visiting a few days with the lady's sister, Mrs. Gus Pelckard, before going to their home in western Wisconsin.

Killed By Soo Train.—Joseph Klemsmith, aged sixty, was struck and instantly killed by Soo line passenger train No. 1 at Stockton at 9:18 o'clock this morning. Klemsmith was a deaf mute and had been employed about the farm of the Misses Mary and Honora Tovey at Stockton since last fall. This morning he had gone to the potato warehouse of A. W. Breitenstein, a short distance north-west of Stockton station, to secure a small two-wheel truck to be used in loading a car with potatoes. With the truck on his back and his head down to protect his face from the driving snow-storm that was raging, he was walking along the main track of the Soo line, returning to the Tovey farm, when train No. 1, which does not stop at Stockton, bore down upon him at a high rate of speed from the opposite direction. The tender of the locomotive struck him and carried him about fifty feet. He was dead before anyone got to him, his head and chest being badly crushed and both arms and legs broken. The train, which was in charge of Conductor J. E. Leary and Engineer W. J. Coakley, was brought to a standstill and the body was placed in charge of Station Agent Arndt Fostad.

Mayors Not Eligible.

Pittsfield Record.—One of the comedies in the drama enacted by the city election held here yesterday was the finding at the last moment that neither the gentlemen running for mayor, were eligible through the act of a recent legislature making it prohibitive for persons without a double set of papers to become electors, and hence forbidding them the holding of office. Edward Clark, one of the candidates was born in England. His father took out his first papers, and as the law then stood, was as much a citizen in the matter of the ballot as the man who is native born. This disqualifies Mr. Clark from holding office as also does it the other candidate for mayor, Charles A. Ludewig, born in Germany, and whose father was the case of many others denied it of no necessity for the immediate filing of the final papers for similar purposes.

This intelligence exploded like a bomb in a Quaker meeting early Monday morning, and later in the day a mass meeting was held at the city hall and the name of H. C. McCoy brought forth to fill the gap and bridge the warring factions. City Clerk Beyer was unable to take off the names of the two candidates and he was equally bound by the rules of the "little law book" from placing the name of Mr. McCoy on the printed ballot. It was necessary, then, for each voter to write the name of his candidate in, and this will go on record as the one time when a candidate was elected entirely by writing in the name. In the case of Mr. McCoy's acceptance of the office and his consequent withdrawal from the race for supervision of the third ward, a candidate had to be elected in his stead, also entirely by writing in his name.
